Tax cut approval is urged by laborites

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO, saying "our country is on the brink of depression," urged the House Ways and Means Committee today to quickly approve at least a $20 billion tax cut.

Nathaniel Goldfinger, representing the labor group, told the tax-writing panel: "Only prompt emergency action can turn the economy around from the edge of disaster."

Goldfinger said the tax cut should be "at least $20 billion and it should be heavily weighted on behalf of low and middle income people whose need for increased purchasing power is the greatest."

Meanwhile, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the committee chairman, told reporters he will press for the panel to finish its work on a multibillion-dollar tax cut by Feb. 6, working nights if necessary.

Such speed by a committee which normally spends months on tax legislation, Ullman said, would not really surprise him. "We've got a good cooperative committee, we're here and working," he added.

Goldfinger said the AFL-CIO "fully supports the action taken last Friday by the Ways and Means Committee to block the President's power to impose a $3 per barrel duty on imported oil."

Another forum, the Senate-House Economic Committee, heard former federal energy Chief John C. Sawhill urge Congress to attack energy problems by sharply raising gasoline taxes, rather than by increasing the price of all petroleum products as suggested by President Ford.

Sawhill, who was fired by Ford late last year, said the President's energy program "could severely aggravate our economic difficulties" by feeding a new round of inflation. It discriminates against the poor and against residents of New England and the upper Midwest, he added.

After a White House meeting of congressional leaders Tuesday, both Ford and Ullman talked of need for compromise and conciliation on the demands for delay on Ford's oil import program.

But Ford said he was adamant that the first phase of the tariff, a $1 increase on each barrel of imported oil, would go into effect Saturday. And Ullman's committee moved another step forward with a bill to force the President to delay the tariffs, which would total $3 per barrel of imported oil by April 1.

The Ways and Means Committee voted 17-16 to send the bill to the House Rules Committee with a recommendation that it be cleared for a House vote next week.

Vote is near on ERA

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The battle lines are being drawn on the Equal Rights Amendment this week as committees in the Missouri Legislature are preparing to vote on the issue.

Hundreds of advocates and opponents of ERA jammed hearing rooms Tuesday wearing buttons or ribbons for their causes.

Mrs. Lynn Block, Route 2, president of the League of Women Voters of Sedalia-Pettis County, was among those who attended the House Judiciary Committee hearing. She testified in support of the amendment.

Mrs. Ellen Walters, representative of the Missouri League of Women Voters and president of the Missouri State Coalition for ERA, read a list of more than 60 organizations who advocate ERA. She also appeared before the House committee.

Missouri's First Lady, Mrs. Carolyn R. Bond, testified before a Senate committee that the amendment was "a matter of simple justice." She said she joined her husband in "full endorsement" of ERA.

Phyllis Schlafly, leader of the nationwide Stop ERA group, said ERA would wipe out advantages women have such as not serving in combat. She said federal laws already take care of discrimination against women in jobs, taxes, credit and education.

"ERA proponents are still looking for remedies to problems that no longer exist," said Mrs. Schlafly, wife of an Alton, Ill., attorney.

She said ERA will open the door for Congress and federal courts to interfere in the domain of the states.

Former Michigan Congresswoman Martha Griffiths, who led the ERA through Congress, said ERA would stop discrimination against women in social security. "The government is collecting from women the exact same amount as from men on social security, but they are not getting paid back the same amount," she said. She estimated that Missouri was Losing $250 million a year in social security money because of discrimination.

In the House Judiciary Committee hearing, a St. Louis insurance agent said ERA will prevent lower life insurance rates for women, who generally live longer than men.

The agent Donna Hearne added that accident and health insurance rates for men will go up. "Men who have less risks will be denied their rights," she said.

A University of Missouri Law School professor told a Senate panel that under ERA organizations that take federal money would have to accept both men and women.

"Fraternities and sororities can remain purely social, or admit both sexes," added Prof. Joan Krauskopf of Columbia.

"It's time we had a law that said the husband and wife are partners and both should contribute to the stability of the family," she said in support of ERA.

Mrs. Schlafly said that ERA would take away all protective labor legislation from women.

Besides causing a breakdown in families, she said she didn't want to see women have the same obligation to support a family as men.

"Several churches, seminaries and church-related schools would lose tax exempt status," she said.

Thirty-three states have passed ERA, five less than the 38 needed to ratify the amendment.

Congress is hesitant on Vietnam aid plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger says he hopes the administration's request for more aid to South Vietnam won't rekindle debate about U.S. involvement in Indochina, but Congress already is balking at President Ford's proposal

Congressional leaders said stiff opposition awaited Ford's request on Tuesday for an additional $300 million military aid for South Vietnam and $222 million for Cambodia.

Ford's official request to Congress was referred to by a group claiming responsibility for a bomb that exploded early today in the State Department headquarters. The group, identifying itself as the "Weather Underground" said in a written statement that the request meant more U.S. involvement in Indochina and was a violation of the Paris peace accords. No one was injured in the blast.

Shortly after congressional leaders met with Ford and Kissinger, assistant Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said: "The leadership on both sides didn't give a flat 'no,' but stated it would be extremely difficult, if not impossible" to win approval for the request.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, flatly predicted the request would be denied because "the majority of the Congress is prepared to let Vietnam go down the drain."

By voting only half of the administration's $1.4 billion request for South Vietnam aid last year, Congress indicated its willingness to sacrifice that country, Tower said.

Ford's request for more money was accompanied by a special message to Congress saying that "recent events have made it clear that North Vietnam is again trying to impose a solution by force." He said U.S. intelligence indicates "their campaign will intensify further in the coming months."

Discussing Cambodia, Ford said that a refusal to provide aid would "undermine the chances for peace and stability in the area.

Egyptians purchase jets

PARIS (AP) — Egypt apparently will be the first beneficiary of a new French policy of direct arms sales to Israel's Arab neighbors.

President Anwar Sadat, winding up a three-day visit to France, was expected to outline the new Cairo-Paris relationship at a news conference today. More details may be revealed in a joint communique.

French and Egyptian officials gave broad hints Tuesday that President Valery Giscard d'Estaing had given the go-ahead for the sale to Egypt of an array of jets, missiles and radar equipment.

The French government last August lifted a seven-year-old embargo on arms sales to the so-called "battlefield countries" in the Middle East — Israel, Egypt, Syria and Jordan. The ban was ended after Sadat admitted that Egypt in the 1973 Arab-Israeli war used some of the French Mirages France sold to Libya with the proviso that they would not be transferred to another country.

Since then, Egypt has received a small number of Mirages bought by Saudi Arabia. King Faisal is also going to pay for the French arms Egypt buys, informed sources have said.

Sadat said he was "fully satisfied" Tuesday after his second meeting with Giscard. Other Egyptian officials beamed and said they were "very happy."

The consensus among diplomatic sources was that the French would not sell Egypt enough arms to bring its arsenal up to Israel's. Officials scoffed at one published report that Egypt would get 120 Mirage jets.

"That many planes would take years to deliver," one source said.

Present monthly production is about eight Mirages of all types, and there is already a large backlog of orders.

Sadat and Giscard also discussed the possibility of Egypt buying a French nuclear reactor to generate electric power, a French spokesman said. President Nixon during his visit to Cairo last year promised Sadat an American reactor, but Egypt refused to agree to inspection procedures demanded by the United States to insure that nuclear weapons were not produced.

French Industry Minister Michel d'Ornano, speaking at a function Tuesday not connected with Sadat's visit, said his government would not sell nuclear reactors unless it got "guarantees satisfying the international community."

Claim other bombings

Bombers loose their fury on two federal buildings

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leftist, antiwar group claimed credit for a bombing early today that damaged four floors in the State Department headquarters but caused no injuries.

Telephone callers identifying themselves as members of the "Weather Underground Organization" warned news organization of the bomb plan and issued antiwar "communiques" in advance of the bombing.

A threatened second bombing at the Armed Forces Induction Center in Oakland, Calif. failed to materialize immediately.

The explosion in a men's room on the third floor of the State Department collapsed several walls and broke pipes causing water damage to the first through fourth floors.

There was a small lake outside the international conference room where Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger gave a news conference Tuesday.

"This was a damn big bomb," said Sgt. Charles Lightner of the D.C. Police. "It wasn't one of those blow-the-lid-off things."

Officials searched the rest of the building with police dogs sniffing for additional bombs.

Two other State Department offices in Washington also were searched but no other bombs were found.

A spokesman for the General Services Administration said a number of other federal buildings in Washington were being searched for bombs.

It was the sixth time in four years that someone claiming to be from the Weather Underground has claimed responsibility for a bomb blast.

A communique from the group criticized president Ford's request on Tuesday for $522 million in arms aid for Cambodia and South Vietnam.

The Weather Underground Organization called the request "deliberate and outright sabotage of the Paris Peace agreement."

Advance warnings of the State Department bombing were received by The AP in Washington and San Francisco, The Washington Post and The Los Angeles Times.

The calls to the AP bureaus directed newsmen to communiques hidden in nearby telephone booths.

The 12-page typed letter received in Washington began:

"Tonight we attack the A.I.D. in the State Dept. headquarters in Washington, D.C. and the Defense Department in Oakland, Calif. Through them the U.S. government continues to wage war against Vietnam and Cambodia."

Fringe groups plan to attack Levi on alleged ties to Veep

WASHINGTON (AP) — Right-wing and left-wing groups plan to attack Atty. Gen.-designate Edward H. Levi's alleged ties to Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller in testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

In testimony prepared for today, the ultraleftist U.S. Labor party accused Levi of protecting Rockefeller family business interests while he was a Justice Department antitrust official during World War II.

And its political opposite, the Liberty Lobby, cited news reports that Rockefeller influenced President Ford's nomination of Levi and pointed out that the school now headed by Levi, the University of Chicago, was founded by the vice president's grandfather, John D. Rockefeller.

"How convenient it is for Nelson to pick the president of his grandfather's school to be our attorney general," a Liberty Lobby official said today in prepared testimony.

Representatives of the National Congress of American Indians and the Chicago Property Owners Association also were scheduled to testify today in the third day of committee hearings on Levi's nomination to succeed William B. Saxbe as attorney general.

Committee members ended their questioning of Levi on Tuesday. Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said he hopes the committee can vote on the nomination later this week.

In prepared testimony, Labor party spokesman Tony Chaitkiw questioned Levi's work on a government consent decree which forced the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey to discontinue certain agreements with the I.G. Farben Co., a German chemical firm.

Standard and Farben entered joint development and marketing arrangements in 1929, and those pacts remained in effect after the war began.

A Senate committee investigated the liaison in 1941 and a year later, Standard and the Justice Department reached an agreement requiring Standard to terminate most of the agreements with Farben.

During the war years, the department supervised the management of the chemical corportation which had been jointly owned by the two parent companies. Levi had an important role in preparing the consent decree.

"The outcome was not simply a whitewash, personally engineered to a large extent by Mr. Edward H. Levi," the Labor party alleged. "It was a series of arrangements whereby the United States government ran interference for the construction of a worldwide cartel by the Rockefellers." John D. Rockefeller, the family patriarch, founded Standard Oil.

Questioned about the matter Tuesday, Levi said, "it seemed to me at the time that it was a proper and important consent decree."

The Liberty Lobby also accused Levi of being soft on campus demonstrators at the University of Chicago.

"If Mr. Levi becomes attorney general, look for more violence, less order, greater chaos and dictatorial power such as this country has never seen," said the statement by E. Stanley Rittenhouse, legislative aide to the Liberty Lobby.

Economic indicators slipping

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economic indicators used by the government to forecast future economic trends are sliding downward at a record pace, the Commerce Department said today.

The department reported that the so-called leading indicators dropped 2.4 per cent in December.

At the same time, the department revised the figures for November to show a 3.5 per cent drop that month. Preliminary figures released earlier had showed a 1.5 per cent decline in November.

The revised figures made the November drop the worst on record, surpassing a 3.3 per cent slip in September.

The index has now skidded for five straight months for a total decline of 11 per cent. The Commerce Department said that is the worst sustained decline in the index since the department began compiling it in 1948.

The outlook projected by the nine factors in the composite index was for rising unemployment, smaller paychecks for people still working and reduced consumer spending.

The figures also placed in jeopardy administration expectations that the economy would begin a revival by midyear.

Economists are divided over how far in advance of economic trends the index moves. Recently, its moves have been very close to broader economic changes.

The index is composed of a dozen factors, but only nine were available for the latest report. Six of those nine indicated deepening recession.

Initial claims for unemployment benefits jumped by an average of 80,000 a week to 530,000 for December. The average work week shrunk by one-tenth of an hour to 39.4 hours. New orders for durable goods — those with the longest life expectancy — shrunk $4.8 billion to $38.3 billion.

Contracts for expansion of factories and productive capacity increased for the first time since September, jumping by $1.2 billion to $13.5 billion. The cost of goods expressed as a ratio of the labor involved in producing them improved and the number of building permits issued moved up slightly from a record low.

But those positive factors were far outweighed by the negative factors, which also included declining stock prices, lower prices for industrial materials and the second monthly decline in consumer installment debt.

Local club captures top honor

The two highest awards made at the local club level by Optimist International will be presented to the Sedalia Noon-Day Optimist Club and its immediate past president, Dr. J. Edgar Harvey, it was announced Tuesday at the club's weekly meeting at the Bothwell Hotel.

The recognition will be made at the group's lady's night function at 7 p.m. Thursday at Maxine's Gourmet House. Wayne Smith, Independence, immediate past governor of the state Optimist district, will present the distinguished president award, a gold wrist watch, to Harvey. Harvey served as president of the club last year when it qualified for the honor.

Of the 3,200 Optimist Clubs in the United States and Canada, only 213 were selected to receive honor club status this year, it was noted. Harvey was one of only 163 club presidents to receive the distinguished president watch.

Bill McCune, club president, said, "we are very proud to learn of our winning these awards and particularly proud of our distinguished president of last year, J. Edgar Harvey."

The group was cited for its many community and civic activities, including helping secure funds to finance the construction of the new Community Center.

In other club business, it was reported that the annual Optimist boy's oratorical contest will be held at 7 p.m. Feb. 27 at the Community Center. The winner of this competition, open to all boys in county high schools, will advance to zone competition. The date and location of the contest has not yet been announced.

Entertaining the club Tuesday was a local singing quartet "The Seekers."

Hope for peace in Middle-East

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Diplomats are becoming bolder these days in advancing the idea that there's some hope after all for peace in the Middle East.

The chorus of comment long has been almost unanimously gloomy about chances of averting a new round of Arab-Israeli war come spring.

Now, the key to a new sound of hope is President Anwar Sadat of Egypt. It's beginning to seem that because of Sadat's complex of problems, ambitions and attitudes, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is about to get a new opportunity to display his diplomatic dexterity. He expressed hope at a news conference Tuesday that a Sinai formula could be worked out, but cautioned against any expectations of immediate success from his next trip to the area.

Some outstanding Israelis, like former Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and former Foreign Minister Abba Eban, though both are now in opposition to the Israeli government, are themselves sounding more optimistic. Dayan recently told an interviewer he did not think another Middle East war was inevitable.

Sadat went to France this week and suddenly French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing was in a position to provide what might be the ingredient that could help the cause of peace. Paradoxically, the ingredient could be French arms.

Eban, also in Paris, says he would deplore a French arms deal with Egypt. He would be more or less expected to say that. But this is one situation wherein such a deal might do more good than harm. The reasoning goes thus: Sadat has complained bitterly that the Russians won't supply him with up-to-date arms to make up for his losses in the 1973 war. They lavishly rearm his ally, Syria, and give Syria the sort of preferred treatment on its debts they withhold from Egypt.

But Moscow wants its quid pro quo: strong influence. The Kremlin wants to reinstall the thousands of military advisers Sadat ejected in mid-1972 and would like Sadat to show appreciation by lessening his antipathy to Communist political activity in his back yard.

If Sadat worked a deal with France he would have somewhere else to turn besides to the Soviet Union. Otherwise, the situation in the Middle East becomes more dangerous precisely in direct ratio to Sadat's lack of ways out of his manifold dilemmas.

A deal with France would give Sadat some elbow room. He could continue to resist too tight a Soviet embrace and in turn this could make things a good deal easier for Kissinger to have another go at his step-by-step concept of easing tension.

Exercise not key to weight loss

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I've just come off a successful diet, going down to 170 pounds. I'm 40, five-feet-six, stocky build and a college professor, which makes me somewhat sedentary in habits.

I've read your book on fitness and follow your exercise routines. I use a stationary bicycle each night to help out — about 60 minutes or so. I do extensive exercises for my abdomen.

What is the relation between breathing and exercise? At what point in the exercise is it best to breathe in and out?

When, after a meal, is it best to exercise? Aslo, what is the biochemistry involved here? Does one increase the usage of calories if he exercises right before a meal?

What self tests can one apply to determine the success of abdominal exercises? I've been at this for more than a year, doing most of your exercises. I have extensive fat around my waist and do not seem to be getting rid of it.

On the basis of my description would you say that a daily intake of 1,600 to 1,700 calories should stabilize my weight once I get to 160 pounds?

Dear Reader — You may have still more weight to lose than you realize.

I don't think it makes much difference when you breathe during your exercises. Whatever is comfortable for you is all that matters. For weight training, it is usually recommended that you breathe in during the lift and out while returning the weight to the starting position. You should avoid holding your breath in deep inspiration as you might do during a chin-up. Breath holding can trigger powerful reflexes that lead to fainting or collapse in some people. You should also avoid overbreathing or breathing too fast. This induces chemical changes in the body that also lead to faintness.

Exercise before a meal if you are doing strenuous exercise. This is particularly true for heart patients, since digestion alone increases the work of the heart. Fatty foods increase the clumping tendency of the blood and decrease optimal circulatory function. Wait at least two hours after a fairly adequate meal before exercising vigorously. A good walk after a meal, in healthy people, is no strain and is often helpful. Healthy people don't need to sit or lie down for long periods after eating. You will use the same number of calories with the same task whether it is before or after the meal.

The best test for abdominal fat is your waistline and the amount of fat under the skin. You can tighten up your abdomen with exercise but exercise won't eliminate abdominal fat.

Abdominal fat means you still have a lot of excess fat to lose, and that means more calorie restriction and continued exercise routines.

You'll have to judge yourself how many calories you need after you have eliminated all the significant fat deposits under the skin. In general eat only enough to control your weight and still have an adequate supply of energy. If you are reasonably active I would hope that might be at least 2,000 calories a day for you.

Eight straight for Columbia

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Eighty-two per cent of the voters who went to the polls here Tuesday favored a $1.5 million school bond issue for expansions and improvements.

It was the eighth time in as many years Columbia voters have given the nod to school bond proposals.

The voter turnout Tuesday was small, but the unofficial tabulation showed 3,117 in favor and 683 opposed.

The bonds will finance expansion of 2-year-old Rockbridge High School and bus facilities and pay for remodeling projects at some older schools. It will not require an increase in the tax levy.

Liquor-by-drink is adopted by Maryville voters

MARYVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Voters in this college community in extreme northwest Missouri have given their approval to a liquor-by-the-drink proposal.

The unofficial tabulation from Tuesday's vote showed 1,118 in favor and 960 against. A simple majority was required.

Only one establishment previously was eligible to serve liquor by the drink under the state's Resort Law.

Oil chiefs endorse Ford energy plans

By The Associated Press

Texaco Inc.'s board chairman has endorsed the basic principles of President Ford's energy program and the Exxon chairman says a gasoline tax as Ford proposes is better than rationing fuel.

Meanwhile, American Petroleum Institute president Frank Ikard said government should help lower income groups in fuel-tight years ahead.

Maurice F. Granville of Texaco, the third largest oil company, praised Ford for "talking frankly" and for an energy program "designed to reduce dependence on imported supplies, and over the longer term, to increase domestic supply."

Chairman J.K. Jamieson of Exxon, the largest oil firm, told a bankers meeting in Miami Beach, Fla., Tuesday "It would be the worst possible thing ... to adopt gasoline rationing to conserve energy."

Granville, addressing a Chamber of Commerce dinner in suburban Houston, Tex., said Tuesday night he recognizes some type of temporary excess profits tax might be necessary. But he added: "We cannot, however, endorse such a tax if it does not include a plowback feature ... to encourage the reinvestment of such funds in energy projects and provide for phasing out within a few years."

Granville said the national lifestyle must change if the country is to live within its energy means.

Ikard told a news conference in San Francisco on Tuesday, "The government has to realize these people have to get to work. The lower income groups need their transportation, perhaps more than others."

He predicted "no real problems in gasoline or heating oil this winter" because of large stocks. The real problem, he said, is conservation of energy supplies and the development of new resources.

Jamieson told a trust conference of the American Bankers Assocation, "Those who advocate rationing just don't know what we'd be getting into. It would be horrible: tremendous bureaucracy, racketeering and black markets."

President Ford has placed a tariff on foreign oil that would hike gasoline prices at least three cents a gallon by summer. Further proposals, now before Congress, would raise prices more than 10 cents per gallon. He has vowed to veto any mandatory rationing program.

Kissinger visualizes Egyptian-Israeli peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger foresees an eventual conciliation between Egypt and Israel.

He also detects "an increasing willingness" in the Arab world to accept the existence of the Jewish state.

But Kissinger says his planned trip to the Middle East sometime next month is to investigate the "real possibilities" of a settlement — not to complete one.

"It will not be a trip designed to settle anything or to generate a shuttle diplomacy," Kissinger told a news conference Tuesday.

"It will be designed to have first-hand talks with all of the major participants — all of the Arab countries that I previously visited — as well as Israel ..."

Kissinger's comments suggest there will be some delay in reaching an interim agreement and that he has lowered his own expectations.

The known sticking points are Egypt's insistence on recovering the Gidi and Mitla mountain passes and the Abu Rodeis oil fields and Israel's demand for concrete evidence of recognition.

Instead of holding back on his visit until Egypt and Israel were close to a settlement, Kissinger has changed his tactics. He said he was doing so "at the request of all of the parties and based on the belief that the urgency of the situation requires that this step be taken."

Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon is known to have pressed the point with Kissinger earlier this month that only his intercession with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat could produce an agreement.

Sadat's warning that Israel must withdraw on the Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian fronts within three months also added to the urgency of Kissinger's mission.

And yet there was an optimistic note in the secretary's comments at the news conference.

"I personally believe that the two interests, of Egypt for the return of some territory and of Israel for some progress toward peace, can be reconciled," he said.

House continues debate on death penalty bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—A 12th category was added to a bill requiring mandatory death for certain types of murder today as the Missouri House continued debate on reinstatement of the death penalty.

Rep. Russell Goward, D-St. Louis, offered an amendment that would require the ultimate punishment on the third conviction for selling heroin or similar hard drugs.

Goward, who has opposed reinstatement of the death penalty in the past, said he felt the inclusion of heroin dealers under the death penalty provision could possibly "run heroin dealers out of the state of Missouri."

As the House membership overwhelmingly turned back attempts to reduce the number of crimes punishable by death Tuesday, the Senate Criminal Jurisprudence and Correction Committee approved and sent to the Senate floor a more restrictive death penalty bill.

Rep. Harold Holliday, D-Kansas City, sought to reduce the number of crimes punishable by death in the House bill to nine, while Rep. Richard Martin, D-St. Joseph, led another unsuccessful attempt to reduce them to four.

Holliday called for removing provisions requiring death for the killing of elected state or federal officials and the killing of hospital employes by mental patient inmates.

"I do not believe elected officials should be given special consideration or privilege," said Holliday.

Martin sought to reduce the number of capital crimes to cover only murder during the course of a rape of kidnaping, murder of a peace officer or murder by a prison inmate under life sentence.

Other capital punishment crimes now in the House bill include murder for hire, multiple murders, murder of a witness, murder during an airplane hijacking and murder by any person previously convicted of first or second degree murder.

The bill recommended by the Senate committee requires death for murder against policemen, killing for hire, murder during a rape or kidnapping and murder by a felon in prison.

The bill now will be reported to the Senate floor, where first round approval was given Tuesday to three bills, two of which would increase retirement benefits for municipal workers. The other measure would allow the St. Louis Board of Education to award contracts up to $3,000 without competitive bidding. The limit now is $1,000.

In commmittee action the Senate Rules Committee recommended approval of a bill that would give the legislature the authority to review, reject or amend rules and regulations of most governmental agencies under statutory provisions.

But, as amended, the bill would exempt form its provisions the Public Service Commission, the Division of Workmen's Compensation and the Labor and Industrial Relations Commission.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Here are the 12 crimes calling for mandatory death under a bill being considered by the Missouri House.

—For the sale of heroin if it is the third conviction.

—Murders during the commission of arson, forcible rape, robbery, burglary, sexual molestation of a child under 13 and kidnaping.

—Murders for hire, covering both the killer and the person paying for the killing.

—Murder of a police officer or fire fighter while on duty.

—Murder committed by a prison inmate.

—Multiple murders.

—Murder of a witness.

—Murder of a person to prevent their identifying the perpetrator of a crime.

—Murder during the commission of a passenger aircraft hijacking.

—Murder committed by any person previously convicted of a capital crime or first or second degree murder.

—Murder of any elected state or federal official.

—Murder of a mental hospital guard or employe by one of the hospital inmates or patients.

Circuit Court judge overrules motion to dismiss

Circuit Judge Frank Meyer Tuesday overruled a motion to supress evidence in a case involving a Warrensburg man charged with manslaughter.

The motion filed Jan. 20, alleged that Leland N. Hunley, 30, was in a "state of mental strain" when he gave oral statements to the Highway Patrol immediately following an Aug. 4, 1974 auto accident. The accident resulted in the death of William P. Arnold, 20, Tipton.

According to the petition, Hunley also gave oral statements to authorities two hours after the accident. The petition requested these oral statements be supressed, contending that Hunley did not realize the legal consequences of his statements.

Hunley allegedly was the driver of a car that collided with a motorcycle driven by Arnold east on Highway 50 just west of LaMonte.

Another motion to supress evidence was taken under advisement Tuesday by Judge Meyer.

The motion requests supression of written and oral statements given Jan. 29 to Sedalia police by Terry G. Buckner, 20, 802 North Osage.

Buckner is charged with the Oct. 27 theft of a stereo tape player from a car owned by Larry Lindecrantz, 201 South Lamine.

Buckner alleged in his petition he was misled by authorities of his constitutional right to an attorney.

Buckner is free on $2,500 bond along with three other Sedalians facing separate charges in connection with the same theft.

The three are Arthur Seabury, 17, 416 West Henry; Terrance Wilson, 17, 403 West Saline; and Thomas Bently, 321 West Saline.

In other circuit court news, Thomas H. Proctor, 22, Kansas City, posted $5,000 bond Tuesday afternoon.

He is charged with selling $70 worth of hashish on Dec. 26 to a federal undercover agent. Proctor was arrested the same day by Pettis County sheriff's deputies and federal drug agents.

Jury begins hearing in damage case

Jury selection and opening statements to the jury were completed by noon in a $700,000 damage suit which began Wednesday in the Pettis County Circuit Court.

Melvin Rice, 21, Green Ridge, and his wife are suing Allied Farm Equipment Inc. of Illinois for actual and punitive damages allegedly sustained by Rice in a mishap March 27, 1972, on the Larry Walk farm, five miles west of Sedalia on Main Street Road.

Judge Phil Cook, Lexington, appointed by the Missouri Supreme Court, is hearing the case. James Buckley and William Brown are attorneys for the Rices, while Martin Gibson and Robert Gardner are representing Allied.

Buckley said in his opening statement Wednesday morning that his client maintains that there was no guard protecting a connection between a grain auger and a power-take-off unit involved in the accident.

Gibson maintained in opening statements evidence will show his client was not responsible for the equipment or Rice's actions at the time of the mishap.

Rice was allegedly injured when his clothing became entangled on the power-take-off shaft.

Mills is dismissed from Bethesda after two month treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills has been dismissed from Bethesda Naval Hospital where he was treated for nearly two months for alcoholism.

The Arkansas Democrat left Monday, but did not appear on Capitol Hill Tuesday and could not be reached at his apartment in suburban Virginia or his home at Kensett, Ark.

A hospital spokesman refused to discuss the case other than to say Mills was dismissed Monday evening.

His physician, Dr. Michael Bohna, could not be reached.

Mills entered the hospital Dec. 3, not long after he appeared on stage in Boston with stripper Fanne Foxe.

Drug overdose considered in man's death

A Sedalia man was found dead Wednesday morning from a possible drug overdose, police reported.

Danny Huddleston, 19, 2608 Highland, died sometime Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning while at a friend's trailer home. The friend, Donald Jones, 96 Greensboro, Heritage Village, told police that Huddleston came to his home Tuesday night and was lying on the living room floor listening to music when Jones went to bed. Jones said that when he got up Wednesday morning, Huddleston was still on the floor.

Police Chief William Miller said that no signs of foul play were found by police at the scene and Huddleston may possibly be the victim of a drug overdose.

An autopsy was performed Wednesday morning by Pettis County Coroner Dr. John Owens. Miller reported Owens said he would have to wait four or five days for the results of laboratory tests before the exact cause of Huddleston's death could be determined.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday at the McLaughlin Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Dr. Thomas D. Hall officiating.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery.

The family will receive friends Thursday evening at the funeral home.

Nixon may be able to leave estate

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's physician says he examined the former president last Friday and Nixon "perhaps" would be able to take excursions from behind his walled estate next month.

The examination came on the same day Nixon received Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger as a personal guest at his San Clemente villa, the former Western White House.

☆ Tax

The bill would retroactively repeal the tariff hike and delay it for 90 days. The measure also authorizes an increase in the federal debt ceiling, a step needed to permit the government to borrow.

Republicans talked of a certain veto for such a combined bill. Ullman, D-Ore., said he thinks Congress could not override a veto of a combined measure.

The President "has his problems, we've got ours," Ullman said. "We both agree a confrontation would not be good for him, for Congress or for the country ... we'll have further conversations through the week."

He said he hopes the ingredients of compromise "would be that in return for some real commitments in Congress, the President might go along with a deferral." A deadlock over the issue could mean the nation will be in "a crisis on the debt ceiling, and he'll sacrifice months in working out an energy package," Ullman said.

Ford's imposition of a tariff would begin pushing up gasoline and heating oil prices within a matter of weeks. But Ullman said he understood that "there will be no fees collected before the end of February, because of the mechanics involved."

Meanwhile, Ullman unveiled a package as an alternative to Ford's $16 billion tax-cut proposal. His measure proposed an $18 billion tax reduction and Ullman said it is "imperative that we have a tax cut of at least this magnitude."

Ullman's package includes a $6 billion 10 per cent rebate for 1974 taxes for most taxpayers.

Ullman's plan also would increase standard deductions, hike the investment tax credit to 10 per cent; and provide other corporate tax benefits.

Details of how these proposals would apply to individuals were not immediately clear.

However, it was known that Ullman's bill would raise the minimum standard deduction from $1,300 to $1,900 for single returns and $2,500 for joint ones; increase the percentage standard deduction by hiking the rate to 16 per cent from 15 per cent, and by boosting the maximum amount from $2,000 to $2,500 for single returns and $3,000 for joint ones.

Rewards serve as motivation for tasks

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

How do you motivate yourself to a big do-it-yourself job?

Reward yourself, say some women who are steady workers.

One do-it-yourselfer looks at a job as a one-dress project or a two-shoes adventure rather than a kitchen painting or bathroom wallcovering job.

"It is far easier to shoot for brownie points that will add up to something for your wardrobe than to face jobs with a crying towel," she says. A job should be worth about what the family could pay if they could find a worker at their price, in her opinion.

In fact, women queried on the subject all rewarded themselves one way or another.

A dieter confessed that she enjoyed working because she could justify a candy binge. A kitchen paint job is a one-pound, chocolate-covered-cherries energizer, and she doesn't think it affects her weight because she works it off, not only by putting zest into the painting, but by scrubbing down the walls and moldings before she begins.

Another woman, who always disliked big jobs "because the family never appreciates it," has found the self-reward angle keeps her from sulking for gold stars. "I'm sneaky about taking a reward, but as soon as I finish a job I head for the shopping center and buy a little something."

Hairdressers get some of the reward allotment and at least one woman takes a neighbor to a local restaurant "for a good lunch" after she gets rid of a big chore. She has painted three rooms and wallcovered two recently and has patched "a zillion places in the plaster walls." She can afford "to squander $10" for the psychological effect — it keeps her going.

Two women said their husbands are always so pleased with any work activity that they reap fringe benefits — restaurant dinners and unexpected gifts — so they don't reward themselves. One prefers the surprise, the other feels she would be rewarded anyway by her husband's sense of relief that he didn't have to do the task which he can "really no longer do" without physical discomfort.

Some women need a deadline to do big projects, and one said she needed one even to do simple cleaning — closets, cupboards or ceiling cobwebs —"it's just not my bag." Planning a big bash is one way to get a job off her chest. Another is to invite her husband's relatives.

"In fact, when my in-laws are coming I can get my husband to provide more money for fix-up. It is the ideal time for getting new fabric for draperies or slipcovers or a new rug or piece of furniture." She often thinks her own reluctance to get to a job is the result of her husband's parsimonious nature. He questions every penny she spends on the home.

Many women enjoy using power tools. It relaxes them to goof off from other routine household tasks. One woman built a good picnic table with instructions from a tool company pamphlet. It makes a great conversation piece, and she's already had flattering comments from her male neighbors who have asked for the instructions.

One do-it-yourselfer who says she "doesn't worry about rewards" has gone on furniture-remodeling ventures. She has built end tables and has remodeled old beds, tailoring the footboards and headboards and decorating them. She antiqued one and pickled another. She has also built a handsome window bench utilizing some good legs she found at a house wrecking lot.

How does she reward herself?

"I'm just happy to see the improvement in my home," she says.

If that attitude is satisfaction enough for a do-it-yourselfer, it is the least costly way to motivate oneself.

Hat pin pricks squeaky shoe woe

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the manufacturers who put some sort of scent in practically everything — detergents, cleaners, paper, soap, etc. We with allergies are at our wit's end to find unscented products when it seems we could be offered a choice between scented and unscented. Fortunately we can get such cosmetics. — MRS. G.F.H.

DEAR POLLY — It is interesting to read in the column how others do things. Recently I needed a long slip and did not have one. I simply removed the elastic from a half-slip and sewed it to the bottom of a regular slip and there was my long slip. Saved some money, too. — H.S.H.

DEAR POLLY — I made the following discovery quite by accident. The inside of my washing machine lid by the hinges was corroded. I use prewash and as I was spraying some I accidentally sprayed it on this corroded part. After the load of clothes was washed the corrosion was all gone and the inside sparkled. — V.V.

DEAR POLLY — Sheets are now so beautiful that it is a shame to hide them on the bed. I made a cloth for my kitchen table with one. Just cut a permanently pressed sheet to the desired size for a tablecloth and hem the edges. Mine is a pretty, easy-to-care-for cloth that will survive even our household of six. — ROSA.

DEAR POLLY — My husband was sick and in the middle of the night he needed an ice pack which I did not have. I put a tray of ice cubes in a plastic storage bag. I put this inside my plastic shower cap, gathered it together and fastened it with a rubberband and it worked perfectly. The shower cap kept the ice away from my husband's clothing but was thin enough to let the cold come through. — ALVERA.

DEAR POLLY — The tray on a TV table had rusted so I removed and discarded it and painted the frame black enamel. Next I sewed on three wide strips of strong tape, from side to side, and had a luggage rack for the guest room. Now my guests do not have to put suitcases on the floor. It folds out of the way to be stored when not in use. — JO.

DEAR POLLY — Living in a small apartment with two little girls leaves us cramped for space. We have learned to make many things do two jobs. One is the girls' rocking horse that is a favorite play thing by day but at night turns into a clothes horse. The spokes on each side of the head make handy hooks for skirts and dresses, the saddle holds folded jerseys and slacks. The horse is low enough for them to reach and they have learned to put their clothing neatly in one place when they undress. — MARIE.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — What can I do to remedy squeaky shoes? — ROY.

DEAR ROY — Use a hat pin to make several small holes through the sole just back of the ball of the foot. — POLLY.

No more cold toes

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's your turn."

"If you really loved me, you'd do it."

So the talk goes on across the country as another cold winter day begins.

Everyone knows they are fuel dollars ahead when they set thermostats lower before going to bed at night.

They also know how cold the floor is for the bare feet of the person turning it back up in the morning.

Butz devised a way of automatically flapping the damper open and shut by rigging a small motor to a heat-sensing device.

The "damper flapper" was the forerunner of the round thermostat seen on the walls of many American homes.

It was in the 1900s that a way was devised to link a handwound timing device to a thermostat so the damper would maintain a given temperature during the night.

The clock-thermostat ... can be set once the winter season and forgotten about ... and 5 to 16 per cent of winter heating energy can be saved each year.

There must be a better way.

That's what Al Butz thought in the 1880s. He hated getting up in the middle of cold winter nights to go to the basement and open the damper so his coal-burning furnace would put out more heat.

And it would also automatically warm the house to an acceptable temperature in the morning before the family got up.

Today the clock-thermostat is regulated by an electric clock. It can be set once for the winter season and forgotten about. The manufacturer says that 8 to 20 per cent of summer airconditioning energy and 5 to 16 per cent of winter heating energy can be saved each year by using clock-thermostats.

And no more bickering and cold toes in the morning.

New Armed Services Chairman promises change

EDITOR'S NOTE — Rep. F. Edward Hebert, 73-year-old Democrat from Louisiana, has turned over the gavel to 70-year-old Melvin Price, D-Ill., his successor as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. The following story examines how the change, decreed by the House Democratic Caucus in a revolt against the seniority system, will affect the operations and legislative decisions of the committee.

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Melvin Price, the new chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, says President Ford's military spending request will be cut, and he says public hearings should be good for the CIA, not bad.

Further, the Illinois Democrat said in an interview, if House Democrats adopt a policy of cutting defense spending $10 billion, for example, he would feel obliged to try to do that.

Price said he has not changed his support for a strong national defense, but he said he wants to change the impression that armed services committee chairmen are too sympathetic with the Pentagon.

"You have to convince your colleagues you're interested in the role of Congress rather than the role of the military," Price said.

Price expressed these views following the House Democrats' revolt this month which toppled former Armed Services Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., and Price's opinions promise changes in the committee.

But no one is willing to predict how extensive those changes will be.

The consensus is that the committee will cut defense spending more than it has before, but the big cuts will be made on the House floor.

It's partly a matter of arithmetic.

The 39-member committee still will have only about eight advocates of such wholesale spending cuts as scrapping the new Trident missile-firing submarine, the B1 bomber and the Safeguard antimissile system.

"It will be voting a little differently than it did because ths antimilitary minority is a little bigger," said former chairman Hebert.

"But if we got to the floor with a zero defense budget, it will cut it to sub-zero," he said.

"No matter what is cut in committee, more will be cut on the floor," said Hebert, who blamed his ouster from the chairmanship on antimilitary forces. "There will still be a direct attack against the defense of the country."

Two leading advocates of deep military spending cuts, Reps. Les Aspin, D-Wis., and Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., agree with Hebert's assessment that there will be some cuts in committee and a lot in the full House.

Aspin said the House Democratic reformers never expected to win a House Armed Services Committee that would slash military programs.

What they did win, Aspin contended, is a chairman who will give the eight or so spending critics as much freedom as the other members to question military witnesses and programs and develop the best case they can to win deep cuts in the full House.

Chairman Price said in an interview he is sure President Ford's military request, whatever it is, will be cut if only because Congress always cuts the requests at least a little.

Price said he could not predict how big the committee cut might be but indicated he thinks it will be considerably more than the $460 million the committee took out of a $21-billion weapons bill last year.

"Some people think it could have been cut more and perhaps it could have been," he said. "There's no sanctity in the budgets sent up by the administration, and I think they should be worked over pretty good by the appropriate committees."

Price added later: "I'm certain there are many cuts that can be made without endangering national security."

New rules strengthen the power of the House Democratic Caucus to mandate specific legislative action. Price said in reply to a question that if they mandated a defense cut of, say, $10 billion he would be obliged to try to achieve it.

But Price said he doubts the Democratic caucus will take that kind of decision away from his committee because of the investigative hearings required for such judgments.

The overriding factor in future years, Price said, will be not the House Democrats' revolt or any change in his committee's philosophy but rather the new congressional budget control system.

Starting next year Congress will set up its own federal budget priorities for consideration along with the President's. With Democrats in tight control of Congress, those priorities are likely to call for less spending on defense and more on social programs.

"The committee should lean toward the congressional budget," Price said, although he said it would have to judge whether "the executive's is the safer budget or the Congress' is the adequate budget."

Disagreeing with Senate Armed Services Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., Price said he thinks public House hearings starting Monday on alleged CIA domestic activities will not endanger the agency.

"In fact, maybe they could help in strengthening the CIA by laying down guidelines and leading to legislation that would clarify the mission of the CIA," he said.

"I think the function of the CIA is in the area of foreign intelligence, and I think if they would devote all their efforts in that area they would not run the chance of losing favor with the American people," Price said.

"I think most people recognize the importance and need of intelligence."

Stock market is not family show

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Like a great weight dropped onto a seesaw, the country's multibillion-dollar institutions leaped onto the stock market this week and bounced prices almost over the playground fence.

Amidst great cheering from the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, records were set. The bulls were waltzing.

Once again the action also induced from the players and onlookers those ancient queries: Does what goes up necessarily have to come down? Will the public, which has been on the playground benches, join in the fun? The answers will be coming over these next few days when, in thousands of households more accustomed to huddling from financial adversity, the question will be asked: Should we get in on the action?

At the moment, there doesn't seem to be much chance that the public will do so. One survey after another shows families to be much more concerned with conserving than risking their assets.

The public had all but withdrawn from stock market activity over the past year, and there is no less an authority for this than James Needham, chairman of the Big Board.

Like the institutions, they were more concerned with those high interest rates, which offered in this time of financial and economic upheaval much more assurance of reward than could stocks.

Now that interest rates are falling — the prime rate is down to 9.5 per cent and yields on short-term government securities dropped Monday to the lowest in two years — the institutions are thinking stocks again.

Indicating their renewed interest was an increase Monday in trades of 10,000 shares or more to 209, compared with 186 last Friday. Only huge orders such as this can produce such excitement, such sharp rises.

In a time as confusing as this, the public is far less likely to come to the consensus of opinion that the institutions seem to have reached. No doubt the speculators will be attracted, but the conservative mood of most small investors suggests they'll wait and watch.

Individual investors do not have the same urgency to buy stocks as do the institutions, some of which have a steady flow of money coming in and so have little choice but to get it invested.

'River Rat' says drivers need voice

KANSAS CITY (AP) — J.W. Edwards, who gained some fame using his radio code name "River Rat" during the nationwide truckers strike a year ago, says truckers still have no strong voice to press their demands.

Edwards, who says he gave up his job as a driver because he couldn't make a living at it, said in an interview that a group he helped organize holds some hope for the future, however.

"The truck driver still has no one to speak for him," said Edwards, who now operates a service station in Kansas City, Kan. He said the trucking industry has "a lot of self-appointed leaders,' who are "after their own benefit."

Edwards said the Owner-Operators and Independent Drivers Association of America, which he helped organize, is the closest thing to a spokesman the truckers have. "It's growing, and sooner or later it's going to do the job."

"Truckers are having a hard time making it now, and the politicians are not interested as long as they can draw their damned salary," said Edwards, who was a spokesman for drivers who refused to drive and blocked highways and service station driveways a year ago to press demands for lower diesel fuel prices, higher speed limits and increased limits on truck weight and width.

"Fuel prices are too high and they're still going up. Truckers can't make a living. There are more quitting all the time," he said.

Treasury notes auctioned to pay deficits

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the first step of its program to borrow $28 billion to meet budget deficits, the Treasury Department auctioned $3 billion worth of notes Tuesday with an annual interest rate of 7.125 per cent.

Treasury said the notes are discounted at an average rate of 99.7 per cent, or $997 for a $1,000 note. The discount price means buyers will receive an effective yield that averages 7.21 per cent interest on each $997 invested.

The department said it received $6.4 billion worth of bids on the notes, which mature in 3.25 years, and accepted the $3 billion worth of highest bids.

Later this week, the department is to auction off $1.75 billion of six-year notes and $750 million of 25-year bonds.

Economic demands are problem of mice and men

By C.G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The cost of living is rising for mice as well as men.

And what disturbs the men to whom mice matter is that while these costs are rising almost astronomically, federal funds for research are being reduced.

Not only are costs of feeding and caring for mice going up, but also for rats, gerbils, hamsters, monkeys, guinea pigs, cats, dogs, pigeons, horseshoe crabs and assorted other creatures used by scientists to learn more about conquering human disease.

Food costs have risen 50 per cent or more recently and the cost of the mice and rats went up 13 per cent at one large breeding laboratory and may soon go up again.

Most laboratory animals have been specially bred, and they have to be fed special consistent diets and shipped and housed comfortably at constant temperatures under germ-proof conditions. Otherwise, an entire research project can be spoiled and thousands of dollars lost.

While the cost of one wee mouse is small, the number of mice in the experiment times the cost of care times the number of days the experiment runs, can make the total appreciable.

A mouse purchased from a breeder now runs about 40 to 60 cents, depending upon weight and age. But it can run up to $1.50 to $2.25 and even higher for some specially bred ones.

Mouse room and board runs about 3 cents a day, so a colony of 100 costs $3.00 a day, and that amounts to more than $1,000 a year, if the experiment runs that long.

An estimated 35 million mice of all strains are used annually in American laboratories.

An estimated 18 million rats — the second most popular research animal — are used annually. Most of these cost $1.15 to $3.85 each but can run $8 or more for some specially bred ones. Their room and board is about 15 cents a day.

Dr. Leon Lewis, director of Northwestern University's center for experimental animal resources, citing increased costs and federal research cutbacks, said, "I am very disturbed by the present situation and, to be frank, very discouraged."

There not only has been less money available for research, but it will not go as far.

Increased labor costs also figured in higher food and care costs, along with stricter U.S. Department of Agriculture requirements for animal care, scientists point out.

One of the most dramatic research cutbacks resulting from federal cutbacks is at the government's own Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

A CDC scientist has reported that advances toward development of a vaccine against gonorrhea — a major public health problem — have been retarded because budget cuts resulted in reduction of the number of chimpanzees at that laboratory from 30 to 4.

CDC scientists have developed a crude gonorrhea vaccine which has been effective in chimpanzees, but they pointed out that refinement for possible human use has been made more difficult by the cutback. Other animals are unsuitable for this purpose.

Dr. Lewis said, "We built up in this country the most progressive corps of basic science in the world."

That corps is eroding, he said, adding that when the government wakes up to the fact that no progress is being made it is going to be too late. To rebuild research teams will take 10 to 15 years, he said.

Some members of Congress fail to understand that when scientists work with exotic animals they may be contributing to the cure of human disease, he said.

For example, he said, some in Congress have ridiculed the study of small crustaceans — shellfish — for compounds which might be useful in the treatment of cancer.

Even when research is not aimed at a particular goal, it can lead to biological understanding which may lead to this goal, so that what one scientist discovers about an enzyme in an exotic animal may be the piece that solves the puzzle of a human disease.

At the Salk Institute in San Diego, Calif., research using cobras and eels produced valuable scientific information about myasthenia gravis, a fatal neuromuscular disease in humans.

Most animals, of course, cost more to purchase and maintain than mice and rats. A rhesus monkey costs about $75, and a laboratory-bred coon hound $150 to $200. A chimpanzee costs $800 to $1,000.

Lewis figures it costs $1.10 a day to keep a dog in a cage and 78 cents for a cat. Room and board for a monkey is $1.17, and it's 36 cents a day for chickens and $1.30 for a goat.

Researchers in Switzerland are studying diabetes in the dolphin and hippopotamus. Officials at Brookfield Zoo near Chicago estimate the cost of feeding a dolphin the 16 pounds of fish a day it requires is $5.

Nevada Gaming Board hears testimony

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Prominent St. Louis businessman Morris Shenker, refuting accusations that he participated in a check kiting scheme, said a complex money shuffle followed a $1 million bank loan he hastily arranged by telephone.

The prospective purchaser of the Dunes Hotel continued his testimony Tuesday before the Nevada Gaming Control Board, which must recommend whether Shenker is suitable to take over the strip casino. The Nevada Gaming Commission will make the final decision.

Shenker said the reputed $1 million rubber check between Horizons West of Las Vegas and a Shenker-controlled Southern California land firm was covered by a Valley Bank of Nevada loan.

"Shenker had a commitment from me. That was no kite," Valley bank board chairman E. Parry Thomas told the board.

Some board members alleged the check was channeled to Penasquitos Corp., San Diego, in an effort to hide a loan Penasquitos made to another Shenker-controlled firm, Murrieta Hot Springs, of Riverside County, Calif.

The money earmarked for Murrieta, Shenker said, was to have come from a Teamsters Union pension fund, representing southeast, southwest and central states, which had loaned Shenker and a late partner, Irvin J. Kahn, more than $150 million for various business ventures.

Shenker said the money shuffling was done to balance books. He added new pension fund loans are being negotiated now and it's "unreasonable under any stretch of the imagination" to think the fund would loan him more money if its directors thought "I was part of anything not honorable or hidden."

Executors of the pension fund have so far refused to confirm whether they knew how its loan money was used by Penasquitos. Control Board members say such confirmation is "crucial."

Shenker also rejected claims of ties to Edward A. White, barred from stock sales in 1971 for breaking federal Securities and Exchange Commission rules. His contacts with White predated White's legal problems, Shenker contended, explaining that in 1965 White's brokerage firm merged with one in which Shenker had a small interest.

Shenker also said he had "nothing to do" with White's 1970 sale of $600,000 worth of possibly phony bonds to a St. Louis Pipefitters Union local.

The pipefitter's pension fund in May 1971 questioned why interest on the Swiss Enterprises, Inc., bonds had not been paid and why they were resold eight months later to a firm called BAI—then controlled by Shenker and an associate.

The bonds were resold a day after the pipefitters pension fund agreed to loan Shenker's BAI firm $6.5 million. Shenker said that at that point he knew nothing of an SEC probe indicating that the bonds might be fictitious.

Lack of control blamed in audit of Lincoln U.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Auditor George Lehr has blamed a "very serious lack of internal control" as the cause of an unknown amount of money missing from Lincoln University, but expressed doubts the case would produce criminal charges.

"You have a very real problem of pinpointing responsibility," Lehr said Tuesday. He said similar instances of missing money accompanied by poor financial accounting techniques in the past did not produce criminal charges.

Lehr met Tuesday afternoon with Lincoln University President James Frank, two university curators, local authorities and representatives of the national accounting firm of Price Waterhouse to discuss Lincoln's business office.

Lehr recommended a "very strong individual" be hired to head the office.

He also said that if a report by Price Waterhouse had been given to the auditor's office soon after it was completed last April, the problems could have been tackled sooner.

Price Waterhouse recommended 15 business office changes, including the immediate hiring of an experienced accountant.

State legislators consider pay hike

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — "I don't want to be classified as a public slave," House Majority Floor Leader Kenneth Rothman said in support of a $4,000 pay hike for legislators.

The Clayton Democrat spoke before the House Fees and Salaries Committee Tuesday to back a proposed pay raise from $8,400 to $12,400 yearly.

Rothman's remark was in response to a question from committee member Russell Brockfeld, D-Warrenton, who called the legislators "Public servants."

"I think we're grossly underpaid," said Rothman.

However, Brockfeld said legislators are part-time officials with outside income.

In other action, the House Accounts Committee decided to fund office expenses of representatives on a central voucher basis.

The House voted last week to receive a monthly credit of $400 to cover travel, equipment rental, phones, office supplies, a home-district secretary and miscellaneous expenses.

Most of the items previously were paid for out of a general fund.

The committee agreed to use vouchers after a researcher said that a $400 payment without vouchers could be interpreted as "compensation other than provided by law."

Former Czech chief dies

Stock market explodes in midst of recession

By JOSH FITZHUGH
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - In the midst of a recession, after months of neglect, stocks are suddenly center stage in the financial world.

With little warning, the market has exploded with activity. The New York Stock Exchange has just completed its two heaviest trading days on record.

Though the widely watched Dow Jones industrial average only advanced 2.11 to 694.77 on Tuesday, the indicator has now climbed 52.87 points in five sessions and more than 100 points since its 12-year low in December.

Whether the price gains can hold or continue, no one is sure, but traders and analysts are hopeful, based on the pickup in trading.

Because interest rates have fallen, cutting the attractiveness of fixed-income securities, investors have begun to look more closely at stocks.

"Investors come in when you're the only game in town," said Arthur Winner, a floor trader of Reich & Co.

Some brokers cautioned that this week's activity might not signal the beginning of a long term rise in the market.

Both Monday and Tuesday, institutional activity was heavy, with some pickup of public interest Tuesday. Toward the afternoon a greater number of small transactions crossed the Big Board's stock ticker.

Around the exchange there was cheer and hope Tuesday.

At times, brokers stood three to four deep around trading posts and runners and clerks moved swiftly but orderly across the floor. A few cheers occasionally would rise.

Meanwhile, there were these economic developments in Washington: —A spokesman for President Ford said Ford has decided he will not accede to a request by congressional Democrats for a 90-day delay in an increase in oil import tariffs Ford has already ordered.

—The Federal Home Loan Bank Board said new deposits at the nation's federaly insured savings and loan associations exceeded withdrawals by $550 million last month. The associations are the biggest source of loans for homebuyers.

—The Federal National Mortage Association reported that interest rates for both conventionally insured mortgages and government-insured mortgages continue to drop.

In the business community:

—E.I. duPont deNemours, the nation's largest chemical firm, reported a drop in earnings in 1974 to $8.20 a share from 1973's $12.04 a share.

—U.S. Steel Corp. reported earnings in 1974 soared 92 per cent despite a 24-day nationwide coal strike. Allegheny Ludlum Industries, parent of Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corp., said its profits climbed 45 per cent.

—Consolidated Edison Co. of New York Inc., making what chairman Charles F. Luce termed "a strong comeback from the low point in April, 1974," announced payment of a first quarter dividend of 30 cents a share, 10 cents more than payouts in the last two quarters.

Norman Mailer and publisher sued for book

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Norman Mailer and his publisher have been sued for $1.5 million on charges that a book about Marilyn Monroe violated the rights of the late actress' estate.

The executor of the estate, Aaron Frosch, claims in a state Supreme Court suit filed Monday that Mailer's book, "Marilyn," was "wrongful commercial exploitation" of his exclusive property rights to marketable publicity.

New office space still a problem

The Pettis County Court continues to strive towards a solution of its seemingly never-ending office space problems.

The court is now accepting bids to partition off a portion of the first floor of the courthouse as an office space for Public Administrator Lloyd Farris.

Office space for Farris is the second needed by the move of County Auditor Jerry Barr into the offices formerly occupied by Farris and Ed Day, veteran's services officer.

Work on an partitioned-off space for Dey began last week on the second floor of the courthouse, adjacent to the county court room, by the Kalo Eichholz construction firm.

Bids on that project were not sought, Presiding Judge John Bluhm explained, because it was originally thought the project could be completed for less than $100. State law, Bluhm said, requires that bids be requested only on projects costing more than $500.

After work on Dey's office space began, Bluhm explained, it was learned the city fire code required asbestos sheet rock be used in the construction, thus increasing the cost of the project.

It was "just a goof on our part," Bluhm said, in reference to not requesting bids on the first project. Although technically legal, Bluhm said the court felt bids should be requested, due to the higher-than-anticipated cost.

Both projects will still cost less than $500 when completed, Bluhm added.

Barr, sworn into office Jan. 2, was forced to work out of his home until moving into the office formerly occupied by Farris and Dey Jan. 13, which shifted the problem to Farris and Dey.

Ford to Atlanta to push for economic, energy programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will go to Atlanta next week to urge action on his economic-energy program. Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Tuesday that Ford will address a White House-arranged conference for professional and civic leaders Monday night and an Opportunities Industrialization Centers of America meeting on Tuesday.

Justice Douglas is building his recuperation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has been removed from the "seriously ill" list at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

Spokesman Pete Esker said Tuesday that the 76-year-old Douglas is continuing physical therapy in recuperating from the stroke he suffered on Dec. 31. There was no indication on how long Douglas will remain in the hospital.

He has participated in the 13 full-scale opinions which the court has handed down since his stroke, but the court has declined to say whether his votes were cast before or after his illness. Esker said Douglas works "quite a number of hours every day with a secretary."

U.S. trade with China is record

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. trade with the People's Republic of China climbed to a record $922.1 million in 1975 but is expected to decline by about 40 per cent this year because of reduced Chinese agricultural purchases, the National Council for U.S.-China Trade reported Tuesday.

Christopher H. Phillips, president of the council, said last year's trade figure was up 22 per cent from total U.S. trade with China in 1973. U.S. sales to China in 1974 totaled $807.4 million, while imports from China came to $114.7 million.

However, Phillips said overall trade between the two countries probably would drop to about $550 million during 1975.

The council's trade figures followed an announcement that China has canceled orders for about two-thirds of the U.S. wheat it had originally sought for shipment through mid-1976.

Rook Industries Inc., a Memphis-based commodity trading firm, said Monday that the canceled contracts involved more than 22 million bushels of wheat.

Behavior mod: where does it all end?

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — Behavior modification experiments on selected prison inmates may be just the beginning.

It is now practical to implant transmitters in the bodies of parolees, enabling a central manager to keep tabs on where his man is at all times.

Cromley

A chronic lawbreaker could be required to carry a transmitter-receiver. If he went where he should not, he'd be warned by urgent signals. If he stayed on the straight and narrow, he'd receive frequent favorable signals, designed to encourage this behavior.

One theorist would force chronic speeders to watch films of hot rodders. They'd get hit with a painful electric shock whenever the man in the movie disobeyed a traffic sign.

It's reported from abroad that one judge ordered a brain operation on a compulsive gambler to cure him of stealing.

There's talk, too, of implanting behavior-modification chemicals in the bodies of some habitual offenders. When sensors reported the chemical supply had reached dangerously low levels, the parolee would be ordered in for a new implant.

The men who design these proposals apparently have imaginations which reach out almost infinitely.

A prominent mind specialist has already proposed that all political leaders be routinely given drugs which would repress any aggression-hostility tendencies they might have.

Chronic alcoholics have been proposed as logical subjects for experimental brain work.

Eager experts some time back began prescribing drugs for hundreds of thousands of children to keep them calm in school and out.

Researchers note that some day, properly designed chemicals, placed in the water reservoirs of major cities, could produce changes in all who drink the water regularly. Does this mean that one day a man seeking to become the dictator of his country — or wishing to conquer another land — will see to it that appropriate behavior-modification chemicals are dropped into the water supplies of major population centers countrywide, insuring a docile population ready to follow his commands?

Where does this bring us? How far are we prepared to go in dealing with those who repeatedly rob, steal, drive too fast, drink too much, disturb our classrooms or whatever? When we use a chemical to change a man's ways, what are we doing to him in addition to preventing behavior we do not like?

The problem will become more serious with the years as scientists develop more versatile drugs, able to change human beings and their as-yet-unborn children in ways we cannot imagine.

These developments start, in present experiments on animals, with chemicals that improve memory or erase thoughts. They include the use of electric currents to rouse or subdue fear and anger, or to create indecision. Presumably, at some time in the future, our technicians will be able to radically alter individuals for good or for bad.

It is certain science will not stand still.

We ignore these trends at our peril. What we have not done but must do is to start thinking, all of us, on how far we want to go in implementing the results of these experiments. These will not be easy decisions. But if we do not make them in our time, our grandchildren may reap the whirlwind.

Narrow win for students

WASHINGTON — If you're as hard put as I am to understand the votes of the four Nixon appointees to the Supreme Court on the rights of schoolchildren, let these facts add to your dismay:

Rowan

✔ Some 2 million American youngsters aged 7 to 17 are not in school mostly because they have been suspended, expelled or pushed out by school officials.

✔ A national study recently found that most of these students are thrown or pushed out of school because they are minorities, they are poor or they are "different."

✔ In a recent court case in Dallas, school superintendent Nolan Estes testified that "institutional racism" exists in the Dallas school system, leading Judge Sarah T. Hughes to find that this racism was a factor in the high percentage of black students suspended for disciplinary reasons.

✔ Of the 20 largest cities in the country, 19 had a higher rate of suspension for minorities last year than for whites.

Against this factual background, it is almost unbelievable that the nation's highest court could have divided so bitterly last week on the question of whether public school students are entitled to a minimum of "due process" before they are thrown into the streets.

Justice Byron R. White spoke for the majority (Justices Stewart, Douglas, Marshall and Brennan) in asserting that school authorities may not suspend a student without giving reasons why and letting the student have a chance to explain his conduct. Mr. White suggested that for the more serious measure of expulsion, a pupil might be entitled to representation by legal counsel.

This would seem to be a measure of justice so elementary as to be beyond debate. But — incredibly — all four Nixon appointees (Burger, Powell, Blackmun and Rehnquist) dissented. They said the decision "unnecessarily opens avenues for judicial intervention in the operation of our public schools that may affect adversely the quality of education," and that the decision "ignores the experience of mankind as well as the long history of our law" by likening the rights of children to those of adults.

I find distasteful even the suggestion that the constitutional right of "due process" applies to 30-year-olds but not to 14-year-olds.

Discipline is clearly a serious problem in our schools. But one source of the problem is the feeling on the part of vast thousands of students that they are helpless in the face of school administrators who wield what Justice White called "the untrammeled power to act unilaterally." This power enables some school officials to discriminate against students and then suspend or expel them if they complain.

No school official ought have the right to "sentence" a child without explanation, or without even a pretense at hearing the child's side of the story. I do not use the word "sentence" lightly, for a child who is thrown from school onto the streets, to languish in ignorance and bitterness, is a child sentenced to degradation.

Many suspensions and expulsions are justified and unavoidable. Without them, some classrooms would be in constant chaos. But there is a major issue of national well-being involved in halting the harsh acts of discipline that are based on the frustrations, vindictiveness, petty prejudices and rampant racism of some teachers and officials.

We shall all pay a terrible price in the long run for pushing 2 million youngsters into limbo, virtually guaranteeing that they will never be able to cope in this society. So we can be grateful for the five justices who insisted that even school children have rights.

Get the State Fair back on even keel

Sedalians, not to mention Missourians in general, must be wondering if there is some sort of plot afoot to destroy the State Fair.

There has been no shortage of evidence in recent months to substantiate such fears.

First there was the Ozark Music Festival that was held on the State Fairgrounds last July. That event, a disaster in both planning and execution, gave the Fairgrounds a black eye that will take a long time to live down.

This fiasco was a big factor in the resignation Aug. 30 of Assistant Agriculture Director Ron Jones, who was Fair secretary when the Ozark festival contract was signed.

Now Jones' successor as Fair secretary, Wendell Smith, has been forced to resign. An Agriculture Department audit of contracting arrangements made during the last Fair, especially those related to the International Village, uncovered several irregularities, according to Agriculture Director James Boillot, who asked for Smith's resignation Monday.

(Boillot pointed out, however, that he had no reason to question the integrity of Fair personnel in relation to the irregularities.)

The sub-leasing of the International Village also attracted the attention of the Pettis County grand jury, which recommended a full accounting. State Auditor George Lehr has already announced that he will comply with the request, so we presumably will be hearing more about this subject.

(It was interesting to learn recently that at the time Mrs. Connie Crouch was given the authority to sub-lease booths in the Fair's International Village she reportedly was also in arrears on state sales tax payments.)

Another Fair personnel casualty occurred last October, when Jim Lewis, assistant secretary and concessions manager was fired by Smith. Lewis had testified before the Pettis County grand jury, apparently in regard to what has now cost Smith his job.

In short, the State Fair has not exactly been a model of stability in recent months. This is harmful to the Fair itself (which is never lacking for legislative critics even in the best of times), not to mention Sedalia, which prides itself on being the State Fair City.

We hope Director Boillot will devote his efforts to getting the Missouri State Fair back on even keel.

Top Texas lawyer drawn into probe

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Famed criminal lawyer Percy Foreman, who has saved so many clients from jail or worse, is now himself the target of a federal grand jury investigation.

A grand jury in Dallas is looking into charges that he received $100,000 to obstruct justice in the Texas Watergate case. According to evidence in the case, he was supposed to "control" potential witnesses against the billionaire brothers, Bunker and Herbert Hunt.

In previous columns, we have reported how a feud over the fabulous fortune of the eccentric Texas oil tycoon, H. L. Hunt, led to a botched wiretap job back in 1970. To avoid implication in the scandal, the old man's sons, Bunker and Herbert, frantically began evasive maneuvers.

They turned to Percy Foreman, whose celebrated clients range from James Earl Ray, the assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King, to a host of social butterflies.

Bunker Hunt wanted Foreman to represent the wiretappers who were potentially the most dangerous witnesses against the Hunts, according to the evidence before the grand jury.

As an intermediary, Bunker used a wealthy friend and businessman, Ed Hudson, who kept detailed notes on his talks with both Hunt and Foreman. But one of the wiretappers, Jon Kelly, who had been hired by Hudson, made off with the notes.

These have now been turned over to the grand jury, and we have obtained copies. They reveal that "Bunker Hunt called (Hudson) from London" early in January, 1972, and confirmed that Hudson was to "go ahead with Foreman on $50,000 fee."

Describing his talks with the celebrated lawyer, Hudson wrote that "Foreman will direct all strategy and guarantee Kelly will not testify before grand jury." So sure was Foreman of success, wrote Hudson, that the lawyer "will return fee" if Kelly had to testify.

Foreman was retained to represent not only Kelly but two more of the wiretappers, W. J. Everett and Patrick McCann. Bunker Hunt authorized another $75,000 retainer, but Foreman agreed to take on the other two clients for $50,000, according to the notes.

The purpose for giving Foreman the $100,000 is stated with stark candor by Hudson. It was to "control" the potential witnesses against the Hunts and "to avoid indictment of Bunker and Herbert."

As recounted in Hudson's notes, Foreman sought to keep his clients off the witness stand where they would have been asked awkward questions about the Hunts.

"Everett will take Foreman's guidance completely," wrote Hudson. "He will not keep appointment with D. A. (District Attorney). Everett will not give info to the D.A. or the grand jury except in return for complete immunity which Foreman feels sure D.A. cannot or will not grant."

To cover Foreman's fee, the notes indicate, Bunker signed a $100,000 I.O.U. to Hudson. About the same time, Hudson withdrew two $50,000 "bearer" checks from his account. Foreman gave him two receipts for $50,000, one on the same day the check was dated, the other, two days after the check date.

We have obtained copies of the checks and receipts, which are in the grand jury's hands.

In case Foreman's magic failed, the three wiretappers were also offered hush money while they were in jail so long as they didn't betray the Hunts. Kelly testified he was promised $1,250 a month while in jail, "providing I did not talk."

McCann said he was offered the same deal, and Everett claimed he was promised $800 a month after he gave his assurance he "didn't plan on cooperating with the government."

Although the "hush money" was never paid, according to the testimony, the legal fees for the wiretappers were picked up by the Hunts.

Other testimony alleges even darker elements to the cover-up. Foreman "indicated," swore Kelly, "that we should avoid testifying at all costs, that the Hunts were treacherous people and would stop at nothing to prevent me from testifying."

When Kelly insisted upon testifying, Foreman allegedly warned him: "Kelly, you are a damn fool. The government can't help you if you are dead."

McCann testified that another Hunt-hired attorney warned him he would "get yourself killed if you double-cross the Hunts." McCann was sufficiently impressed to comment: "I felt like it would be financial suicide, if not other suicide, if I testified against the Hunts."

As it turned out, Foreman won an impressive initial victory for Kelly in a contempt case. But in the end, all three wiretappers were convicted.

As we previously reported, Bunker got help from Senate Judiciary Chairman James Eastland, D.-Miss., in his back-stage effort to avoid indictment. There were allegations that Eastland received "a $50,000 to $60,000 payoff," which the senator denies.

In any event, both Bunker and Herbert were finally indicted on wiretapping charges in 1973.

Hunt, Foreman, Hudson and their allies have all emphatically denied wrongdoing. While Foreman did not return our calls, he has previously been quoted as saying he never tried to prevent Kelly from testifying. A spokesman for Hunt said there was no effort to cover up the scandal.

Footnote: For the record, the Justice Department has said only that Bunker Hunt, Foreman, Hudson, and others are "the subject of the grand jury's investigation ... of obstruction of justice."

Dauphin's Origin

Dauphin was the title of the heir apparent to the French throne from 1350 to 1830, from the time the future King Charles V purchased lands known as Dauphine in 1349 and acquired the title of ownership "dauphin" which accompanied them. Granting Dauphine in 1368 to his son, Charles V, he established the precedent whereby the French king's eldest son became dauphin.

Opening lead — K ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

One of the four books that make up "Bridge Play" was called bridge from A to Z. It describes 26 kinds of bridge plays.

A stands for Avoidance. An avoidance play is designed to keep the dangerous opponent out of the lead.

South takes his ace of spades; leads a trump to dummy's ace and a second trump back to his king. Now if South is a hog he will try a club finesse with the idea of discarding his losing spade on a good club and making either five or six depending on where the ace of diamonds happens to be.

Unfortunately for this player East will produce the king of clubs and lead back the queen of diamonds and instead of making five or six our hog will wind up one down.

There is a simple avoidance play to insure the contract. South leads a spade to dummy's jack. West can do no better than take his queen and lead another spade. South discards a club on dummy's jack of spades; cashes the ace of clubs then leads the jack and lets it ride if East plays low. South loses one spade and two diamonds but wins the rubber.

Suppose West held the king of clubs. South would not make any overtricks, but he would still make his contract.

Aberdeen home to many American oilmen working in North Sea

Aberdeen rejuvenated

The Scottish port of Aberdeen is booming in its own quiet way—enjoying a surge of prosperity from nearby North Sea oil exploitation. There's been huge investment by the oil interests and an influx of American oilmen with the result that business is good, unemployment is down, with new buildings going up and the fishing industry which used to dominate the harbor nearly forgotten. (AP)

By RONALD THOMSON
Associated Press Writer

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — At the American Food Store in oil-happy Aberdeen, Scottish manager Hamilton Ross fretted over his dwindling stocks of tequila and tamales, bourbon and barbecue sauce.

"Aye, it's strange fare for these parts," he said, "and I'm not sure I'd want to try some of it myself.

"But what a business we're doing with the oil wives! They're besieging us for the stuff. We can't get enough American food."

Between 3,000 and 4,000 Americans, mostly with the accents of Texas and Louisiana, are living in and around this gray granite city on Scotland's northeast coast — the jumping off port for U.S. oilmen working in the North Sea.

Some 100 U.S. companies are among 240 firms involved in North Sea oil exploration.

No one believes that the American Food Store, a locally owned enterprise in cramped premises tucked away in a side street, represents a fundamental switch from a haggis to a chile culture in the Scottish Highlands. But thrifty Aberdonians know a good thing when they see it.

"More than 90 per cent of our customers are American housewives who are used to stocking up the larder and think nothing of spending $100 in one visit," said manager Ross. "One time the American wives came in on special excursion trains from other parts of the oil area, and they nearly cleaned us out."

Before its oil rejuvenation over the past three years, Aberdeen, a city of 200,000, exuded a strong smell of fish from the trawler fleet which kept it going. Now the city booms on oil and fishing is nearly forgotten.

"The Americans mix well, avoid setting up their own colonies and genuinely seem to enjoy living here," said John Hutton, development officer for the Northeast Scotland Development Authority.

"Most are family men who belong to an international elite that submerges nationality. It doesn't matter whether you're American, French, Italian, Dutch or British — you're an oilman. It doesn't matter where you were born but where you've been — Saudi Arabia and Nigeria, Venezuela, Iran and Australia.

"That's why you rarely see anyone walking in Aberdeen in a Stetson and cowboy boots," Hutton noted. "Anyone dressed like that is probably a Scotsman pretending to be a Texan."

The lion's share of North Sea oil reserves — 15 to 20 billion barrels compared with 370 billion in the Middle East — are in the British sector of the sea, within 150 miles of the coast. Norway, Denmark, West Germany and the Netherlands also border the North Sea and are exploring for oil.

Oil strikes off the Scottish coast alone now number 20, and 15 of these wells — already in production — will have a peak output of 100,000 barrels a day from each well.

Aberdeen retains its bleak, stone image but any evening the house is packed at the Star and Garter or the Murtle Mill or the Treetops or the North Sea Petroleum Country Club where many oilmen gather.

With prosperity, however, there are problems.

The Anglican Church recently charged that the oil boom has brought "schoolgirl prostitution, alcoholism and marital breakdowns."

"The Americans are paying fabulous prices for houses," said taxi driver Stewart Scott. "What chance do our youngsters have?"

Some oilmen have taken over furnished accommodation at $250 a week.

"There's no doubt that house prices have risen 75 per cent, on a par with London and the well-off counties around the capital," Hutton said. "But that's one of the measures of this oil shakeup."

★ ★ ★

Four years ago a one-room apartment rented for $10 or $12 a week. But then Aberdeen was in the doldrums, with a low-wage economy, and more than 4,000 disillusioned workers were quitting the area every year.

Today Union Street, the mile-long main stem, throbs with traffic and the smart shops are full of well-dressed men and women.

"I can remember many of the premises in Union Street boarded up and the place looked as if it was dying," said Tim Kenny, trade relations director at the Shell Company's spectacular new $2.5 million building on a hill overlooking the city. "Huge investment by the oil interests is not only giving Aberdeen a shot in the arm, but a new life."

The seam of prosperity cuts through all the city's layers.

The Shop on the corner

Bn exotic establishment flourishes on this quiet side street in Aberdeen, Scotland; the American Food Store, 90 per cent of whose customers are American housewives. U.S. oilmen and their families have come to live in the city, as U.S. companies have become involved in North Sea oil exploration. On the surface the city retains its gray stone image—but cracks are appearing, and there's a new bustle of life. (AP)

Great depression remains dark memory for many

It was home

It is 1932. One of hundreds of jobless who made their homes in a shanty town jungle on the Philadelphia riverfront watches the shack he called home go up in smoke. Police threatened to clear the area by burning the encampment. The men set the fires themselves "to save the park guards the trouble" and moved on. (AP)

The faces of depression

It is 1930. These are the men of the breadline. Their faces reflect the hardships suffered by these early victims of the Depression as they wait patiently in a breadline on New York's Lower East Side. (AP)

By SAMUEL G. BLACKMAN

For years Americans have been told that it could never happen again — a repeat of the Great Depression.

The reasons: the many protective laws enacted since the tragic days of the 1930s, and the memory of those years.

"A good knowledge of what happened in 1929 remains our best safeguard against the recurrence of the more unhappy events of those days," John Kenneth Galbraith, the Harvard economist, wrote in his book, "The Great Crash 1929." The 1929 experience. he added, burned itself "deeply into the national consciousness.'

The Great Depression followed "Black Thursday" of Oct. 24, 1929, and an even blacker Tuesday, Oct. 29, when stocks went down, down, down after having tripled in value during the wild speculation of the late 1920s. By the end of 1931, stock losses were an estimated $50 billion.

Only 30 per cent of the U.S. population today — those over 45 — lived through the Depression that followed the market crash and know what it was like.

It was like this:

—In March 1933, the month that Franklin D. Roosevelt was inaugurated President, unemployment reached its peak, 14,706,000. These were industry figures; labor's were slightly higher. This meant that one of every four of the work force was out of a job. By comparison, in December 1974, there were 6,500,000 unemployed — one of every 14 of the work force.

—Bank suspensions (closed temporarily or permanently) totalled 4,004 in 1933, up from 659 in 1929; 1,352 in 1930; 2,294 in 1931, and 1,456 in 1932. In 1934 the number of suspensions had dropped to 57. And in the years since 1941, when there were nine suspensions, the number of American bank failures each year had been two or three. In 1974, four failed.

Runs on many banks were the result of rumor and panic. Seeing a line in front of one bank, people would run to another to withdraw their funds, out of fear and often without reason.

The failure of the bank of the United States in December 1930 contributed to the panic. Although it was a commercial bank, many people wrongly associated it with the federal government.

★ ★ ★

—In the summer of 1932, an army of jobless World War I veterans, calling themselves the Bonus Expeditionary Force, marched on Washington to demand that Congress make available immediately the balance of a bonus not due to them until 1945. The cost was approximately $2 billion. They built a crude city on the Anacostia Flats. When living conditions became intolerable and the bonus bill was defeated in the Senate, president Herbert Hoover ordered the area cleared. Army troops under the direction of Gen. Douglas MacArthur did so.

The veterans departed the city, singing:

"My bonus lies over the ocean; My bonus lies over the sea.

"They gave all the dough to the Frenchmen

"But they won't give my bonus to me."

—Farmers revolted over low prices. Corn, for example, brought 10 cents a bushel. Today, it brings around $3.50.

At farm foreclosure sales, farmers often threatened auctioneers and conspired to thwart them. A few would bid low (often $1 or $2) for a farm or furniture and then give it all back to the farmer about to be dispossessed.

—Thousands of families, unable to meet mortgage payments or monthly rents, were evicted.

—Breadlines and soup kitchens to feed the hungry were set up by churches, Communities and relief agencies. On street corners, and even in the shadow of the Capitol at Washington, men stood with signs: "unemployed. Buy apples, 5 cents." (Apples sold for 75 cents a bushel.)

—Millions wandered aimlessly in the nation, looking for food or work. Men who once held good jobs became door-to-door salesmen for whatever seemed saleable. In railroad towns, hoboes who rode the rails begged for food and some marked an "X" with chalk on curbs in front of houses where they had received a handout — a sign to the next man looking for a piece of bread.

—Many of the young stayed in school, despite the fact that school facilities were reduced by lack of funds and many teachers went payless.

★ ★ ★

"We were rich in the Thirties," a widow recalls. "My husband made $5,000 a year and we had everything we wanted because food costs were so low." Cost of food was a big difference between then and now."

Some prices from 1932 newspaper advertisements: butter 19 cents; spring lamb chops 24 cents; two dozen eggs 25 cents; potatoes, 100 pounds, 1.35; 24½ pounds of flour and one package of cake flour 99 cents; pork and beans 20 large cans, $1; coffee 27; cigarettes, 2 packages, 25 cents, carton $1.17.

Restaurant meals were cheap. Deviled crabs were offered for 15 cents each and chicken dinners for $1. A special Friday shore dinner for $1 included (1. steamed clams (2) oysters or clams on the halfshell (3) choice of fish (4) vegetables, potatoes and cold slaw (5) dessert of pie or ice cream (6) beverage.

Newspapers told how to serve a dinner at home for six at a cost of $2 (sometimes lower). The $2 dinner menu: iced tomato juice 17 cents, minute steak 50, shoestring potatoes 10, buttered broccoli 50, apricot cream dessert 48, bread and butter 10, demitasse 5.

If you had a job and your bank failed, you still had much to be thankful for. The writer lost half his $1,200 savings when a bank and a building and loan failed. He took a cut in salary as did thousands of others in hundreds of businesses.

That's the way it was on March 4, 1933 when Roosevelt was inaugurated President and tried to calm the nation with his statement that "the only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

President Ford said last month that "times are nowhere near desperate enough to paraphrase Franklin D. Roosevelt's great rallying cry ... Still, it is a good thing to remember."

Early in the Depression there were forecasts that it would soon be over. On May 1, 1930 President Hoover had said, "I am convinced we have passed the worst and with continued effort we will rapidly recover." The phrase "around the corner" to forecast the end of the Depression was as much a cliche then as "the light at the end of the tunnel" was in forecasting an end to the Vietnam war in the 1960s.

As for Roosevelt, you were either for him or against him and the antis were legion.

One anecdote, a commentary on his farm policies and the Depression.

Roosevelt, on tour, saw a farmer leaning against a rail fence, beaming roadly.

"Why are you so happy' "FDR asked.

"I'm a new father, a one and one-half pound boy."

"That's not very large," the President commented. "Hell", the farmer said. "These days you're lucky to get your seed back."

Use of modern methods inspires Swedish farmers

By HANS NORRBOM

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Bjoern Ericsson and his wife Barbro are an energetic young couple determined to make their fortune on the family farm, inspired by recent brighter prospects for Swedish agriculture.

The Ericssons, together with Bjoern's father, could serve as an example of modern capital consuming, medium sized farming in Sweden. On their leased farm in a wooded area some 30 miles north of Stockholm, they cultivate 140 acres of arable soil and 62 acres grazing area. In addition they take care of 35 milking cows, 35 heifers and a number of calves.

"We enjoy our work and intend to stay here our lifetime," Bjoern, 32, tall and heavy, says, and gets a nodding response from his wife.

They have reason to be proud of the results of their work. He recently installed a device to wind up grain to a cold air crop dryer on the top floor of the barn. From there he intends to introduce an automatic feeding mixer to be piped directly to thehhe cows. With that in mind, he has installed an automatic outmanuring system which, together with sophisticated milking machines, minimizes handling of the animals.

The Ericssons' capital consuming enterprise is by no means an exception in today's Sweden. Farmers have been forced to adjust their production methods to the need for labor saving, high-mechanized farming as a consequence of the government pricing policy

Some 5-6 per cent of Sweden's working population are employed in agriculture (crop and livestock). At the same time, however, the volume of agricultural production in this country is much the same as it was in 1940, when 25 per cent of the working population were employed in agriculture.

Postwar agricultural policy in Sweden was defined by the fact that the agricultural sector was lagging behind other branches of the national economy in efficiency. Considering this, high international prices on farm products created a negative political attitude toward farmers' interests and deteriorating individual profits. During the period 1964-1967 seven per cent of the arable land was either transformed into grazing areas or planted with trees.

The more positive government view toward agriculture is also based on the principle that all land which can be utilized in a rational way be allocated for agricultural purposes, especially for grain production.

Land ho!

The towers of New York City's financial district rise off the port bow as crewmen tend a jib sheet on forse deck of the yawl Petrel. The 70-foot-long classic racing yawl was returning from another one of its cruises about New York Harbor recently to its berth at the Battery. The cruises are open to the public under a program of New York's Parks Department. (AP Wirephoto)

Transplant survivor lives with fear in borrowed heart

Medical miracle

With fitting vigor, Mrs. Betty Anick delivers a pep talk to a patient at St. Luke's Hospital, Milwaukee. Mrs. Anick is the longest surviving heart transplant patient in medical history—near death when she received her new heart at St. Luke's on Oct. 21, 1968. Now doctors say she has the normal life expectancy of a 55-year-old woman. She calls the operation a miracle and believes she was kept alive to encourage other heart patients. (AP)

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Betty Anick enters medical history next Saturday as the person who has lived with a transplanted heart longer than anyone else on record.

"Look at me," she tells heart patients at St. Luke's Hospital. They are patients she visits every Friday, moving slowly from room to room in the familiar hospital halls. "I was in worse shape than you six years ago," she says. "Now I go out dancing."

The longest surviving heart transplant patient had been Mrs. Anick's friend, Louis B. Russell Jr., an Indianapolis, Ind., school teacher who died on Nov. 27 at the age of 49. He had lived six years, three months and three days with another person's heart.

Mrs. Anick, 55, says she felt she was only hours from death when she received her new heart at St. Luke's on Oct. 21, 1968, less than two months after Russell's transplant.

"They opened up my chest and the blood was just sort of slushing through my heart, like it was saying goodby," she says. "I probably would have lasted only a few hours, maybe a few days at most."

Mrs. Anick and her husband, John, 60, a retired factory worker, still choke up when they relive their lives before she got her new heart: the months at a time when she spent 22 hours a day in bed, the four times her heart failed, and the five weeks of waiting to find a donor.

John Anick, currently on his 11th electronic pacemaker device, was one of the first heart patients in the country to use the pacemaker to control his heartbeat 15 years ago.

"The doctors said nothing could be done for her," he remembers. "I had heard about these new heart transplants, so I went and asked the doctors to do one on Betty. They hadn't even considered it, but it was her only chance."

"No, we hadn't considered it," says Dr. Derward Lepley, who headed the surgical team that gave Mrs. Anick her new heart to replace the old one that had been decaying for a decade with heart disease.

"Looking back, I said yes more out of emotion that intelligence," the doctor says. "I had done heart transplants in the lab, but hadn't planned to do any on humans. We didn't have a good drug to prevent rejection."

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Anick, a devout Catholic, decided that she would permit the heart operation that saved her, "only if our priest said it was all right."

The priest agreed, but Mrs. Anick had the additional problem of surviving until a suitable donor could be found.

After five weeks of waiting, Dr. Lepley and other members of the surgical team found a heart that might work, in a 28-year-old man named Robert Buelow. He had suffered irreversible brain damage in a Milwaukee street scuffle.

Buelow's sister, Mrs. Judy Rogden, was asked to sign a waiver permitting the transplant. Her brother's heart was kept beating by artificial life supports systems at St. Luke's.

"At first I said no," Mrs. Rigden recalls. "I was afraid they were going to use the heart for some type of experiment. I wanted to know it was going for a person."

To reassure her, doctors took Mrs. Rigden into Mrs. Anick's room.

Buelow's relatives and the Anicks remain close friends, and the Rigdens have met other transplant patients and become active in Concerned Hearts, a club founded by Mrs. Anick and other successful heart patients to provide moral support and encouragement for those still facing heart surgery.

Even after gaining the relatives' consent, the operation almost didn't come off because Buelow's heart and Mrs. Anick's heart were not well enough "matched" on the A through D scale doctors use to determine whether one organ can be transplanted into another person's body.

"It was a B or C match," says Dr. Lepley. "We weren't even sure we could go ahead."

To this day, Mrs. Anick believes the new heart was "a near perfect match. It was an A-minus, almost identical to my old heart."

"Nonsense," says Dr. Lepley. "We just told her that to cheer her up."

The operation went smoothly, and doctors waited for the body's almost inevitable rejection of the new heart.

"I never rejected, though," says Mrs. Anick. "I've been very lucky because I've never had any rejection."

Again, Dr. Lepley disagrees.

"She had some rejection about the third or fourth day, the most critical time," he says, but Mrs. Anick was pumped full of cobalt, cortisone and other anti-rejection drugs.

She came home five weeks after the operation and by Christmas, 1968, felt nearly recovered.

"I was so confident that right after Christmas I told John to go out to a sale and get one of those artificial trees. I just knew I'd be around to use it," she says.

Today, 2,186 days after the operation, Betty Anick leads an almost normal life for a housewife and grandmother.

She spends a lot of time with her two sons and their families, takes anti-rejection drugs daily, has a checkup twice a month and makes a public speaking appearance about once a week.

But even after traveling across the country to speak to civic and medical groups, she says she doesn't feel any different than she did before the operation.

"I'm still the same old me," she says. "Nothing's different."

Food prices fail to show drop

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Prices for chicken, T-Bone steak and sugar dropped last week, but most food prices failed to reflect sharply lower wholesale prices, the Missouri Farm Bureau said.

The bureau's weekly survey said Monday low-fat milk dropped from $1.37 to $1.35 a gallon. Whole milk average prices remained unchanged at $1.46 a gallon.

Bread prices remained stable, while a 10-pound bag of red potatoes rose from $1.02 to $1.04.

A pound of ground beef rose from 78 cents to 80 cents, and arm roast jumped from $1.09 to $1.18 a pound. T-Bone prices dropped from $1.82 to $1.77.

Sugar prices dropped for the sixth straight week to $5.23 from $5.34 the previous week.

Grade A eggs large and medium size dropped a penny a dozen, while extra large eggs remained unchanged at 81 cents a dozen.

Whole fryers went down to 51 cents a pound from 52 cents a pound the previous week. Cut-up chickens dropped two cents to 57 cents a pound.

Several pork prices dipped slightly, but center cut chops increased from $1.60 to $1.63 a pound. Butt portions dropped from 97 cents to 94 cents a pound, pork steak went from $1.07 to $1.04, and pork blade roast dropped from $1.03 to $1.01.

Young man finds direction in law enforcement

SPENCER, W. Va. (AP) — Robey Jack Knight was 25 and roaming from job to job when he nonchalantly allowed his name to be put on the Democratic ballot for sheriff "just to fill the ticket" in overwhelmingly Republican Roane County.

Now, little more than a year after he was elected, he has changed the three-person department's focus from tax collection to law enforcement and says he can't imagine not being a sheriff.

When he was a child, he never dreamed of police work, he said. "I wanted to be a coach."

A Roane County native, he did play football and baseball for Spencer High School, and joined the Army upon graduation. After he got out in 1969, he briefly tried college. He sold insurance in Oak Hill for four months, then moved back to Spencer to help his mother with her grocery store in nearby Left Hand until the May 1973 primary.

His father, the late Robey Chapman Knight, had been active in Democratic politics and had been business manager of Spencer State Hospital and a board of education member.

"The Democrats didn't have anybody filed," the 27-year-old sheriff recalled. "Very seldom do Democrats get elected in this county. I really just put my name on the ticket to fill the ticket.

"Then I kinda got working at it real hard. People talked to me. I almost went door-to-door. The more I did, the more enthusiastic I got about it."

When the returns came in, Knight was the only Democrat elected in the county.

"I was kinda surprised," he admitted. "I guess I just worked harder than the other guy."

Since he had no police training, he spent six weeks after the election in Fayette County, where his brother-in-law was sheriff. Since his department is not on civil service, he chose two new deputies, neither of whom had experience either.

"Before I took over, the sheriff's office had just been really a tax collection office," he explained. "I went more into the law enforcement aspect. We now have 24-hour service — before people had to call the state police at night. We now have a sheriff's car, marked with all the lights and everything."

His department averages 10 arrests a month, he said, mostly misdemeanors, peace warrants, traffic violations, intoxication.

"I like it very much. I hate to think of getting out of it," he said. His four-year term expires in 1976 and he said he plans to run again as a result of voter approval last year of a constitutional amendment allowing sheriffs to be elected to two consecutive terms.

"I really don't have any problems because of my youth, probably because of my family. I know almost everybody. I treat people the way they want to be treated," he said.

He was married last year between the primary and general elections and now has one child.

Retired man prefers plane

REDWOOD FALLS, Minn. (AP) — While other men his age are wielding golf clubs or garden hoes, Leo Zeug has handcrafted a sleek vehicle that cruises at 130 miles an hour and gets 50 miles a gallon.

His handiwork isn't likely to put any Detroit car manufacturers out of business, though, because the vehicle is an airplane — a tiny craft that set him back $2,000 in parts and 1,000 hours to construct.

"This has been a dream of mine ever since I was a boy," said Zeug, 61. "It's something I've always wanted to do and I finally got started on it a little over a year ago when I sold my business and started to have some free time."

The waist-high miniplane is only 13 feet long, has a wingspan of 17 feet and weighs 460 pounds.

Zeug built it in his garage. He put the plane together entirely by hand, using a designer's sketch as a guide.

The cockpit canopy and landing gear came in a kit; otherwise, with the exception of instruments and cockpit equipment, he built the machine by hand.

"I'd just cut the wood and machine out the pieces," said Zeug, who owned a machine shop and manufacturing plant until his retirement. "That's what was challenging about it."

He modified a Volkswagen engine to power the plane. The 50-horsepower engine will push the plane at 140 miles an hour, although he says its cruising speed is about 130. The craft uses 2½ gallons of fuel an hour at cruising speed.

He's put in about three hours of flying time on the plane, and says it's behaved perfectly.

"I did get a few butterflies before that first takeoff," he admits. "But confidence is the important thing. There's no radio in this little plane so you're really on your own up there. If you run into trouble in the air, no one's there to bail you out."

Zeug, married and the father of six, has been flying for 18 years. The inspiration to build his miniplane came to him when he visited an amateur-built plane show at Rockford, Ill., a few years ago.

Roadrunners romp 93-50

Johnson cracks SFCC scoring record

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Charles Johnson bettered by seven points the individual scoring record and led the State Fair Community College Roadrunners to their sixth conference victory of the season Tuesday night.

Johnson, a 6-3 freshman forward from California, Mo., poured in 41 points, setting the pace for State Fair's 93-50 win over Haskell Indian Junior College in the Agriculture Building.

Johnson tied the former school record set by Jim Lassiter in 1971 with 34 points against Crowder in the season's opener.

"That's the most points I've ever scored," Johnson said after his 41-point effort against the Indians.

"I knew he'd scored a bunch when I took him out of the game," said Bill Barton, whose Roadrunners stayed abreast Johnson County, Kan., in the Greater Kansas City Community College Conference standings with the win at 6-1.

"I'm happy for Charles. He's a very unselfish player and a great leader," Barton added.

When Johnson left the game late in the second half, his 41 points matched Haskell's total output at that point in the game.

Although Johnson's scoring was the highlight of the game, it wasn't the whole story. There was his defense. Barton put Johnson on Haskell's Bob Tarbell, who scored 31 points against the Roadrunners in the teams first meeting in the conference tournament early last month.

Tarbell, Syracuse, N.Y., got only four points in the first half.

He was hampered in the first half with an eye injury he suffered early in the contest. Tarbell did manage to wind up as the Indians' leading scorer with 15 points.

Tarbell, listed earlier this season among the national junior college scoring leaders, also got into foul trouble and had to be shuffled in and out of the game by coach Wayne Postoak.

Rebounding, a large portion of which for the Roadrunners came from Ray Steele, was also a big factor. State Fair pulled off 63 rebounds to Haskell's 25. Steele, Denver, Colo., had 21 caroms.

Stan McNeill, SFCC's 6-9 center from Aliquippa, Pa., ruled the inside game at both ends of the court along with Steele. McNeill was credited with five blocked shots —all in the first half. His intimidating play was too much for Haskell's pivot man, Lew Schneider (6-8), to handle.

The game was close only in the early minutes of the first half. Johnson's 18 points in the first period propelled the Roadrunners to a 38-21 half time margin. The spread could have been more had State Fair capitalized on their second and third attempts.

State Fair's fast break really got rolling in the second half.

The Roadrunners more than doubled the score with just under 10 minutes to play in the contest. Steele gave SFCC a 40-point lead, 75-35, with 7:12 showing on the clock.

The Roadrunners' biggest lead was 47 points, which came on Johnson's last bucket of the game. His 40th and 41st points pushed State Fair into a commanding, 89-41 lead.

But the victory, the Roadrunners' 15th against only five losses, will be relished only for a short time.

Thursday night, one of the top junior colleges in eastern Missouri, Forest Park of St. Louis, pays a visit to the Fairgrounds for a non-conference date.

"They are tough," said Barton after Tuesday's win. "We saw them in the Crowder Classic and they'll be tough to beat even if we are playing them here (at home)."

Following Johnson in the scoring department for State Fair was freshman guard Shelvy Brown (14); Steele added 13, while McNeill scored 10.

Other double figure performers for the Indians, who now stand at 1-5 in Greater Kansas City Community College Conference play, were John Keith, who scored 12, and Schneider, who added 11.

Following Thursday's home date with Forest Park, State Fair takes to the road for a conference game against Longview Community College at Ruskin High School in suburban Kansas City.

Northwest stops skid

Smithton Tigers remain unbeaten in league play

Smithton remained undefeated and in first place in the Kaysinger Conference standings with a 70-58 victory over LaMonte Tuesday night in area basketball play.

The victory keeps the Tigers, defending league co-champions, in the top spot in the nine-team league with a 6-0 record.

Green Ridge whipped Stover, 77-50, and remained right on Smithton's heels. Green Ridge moves to 5-1 in league play.

One of the other big stories of the night came out of Hughesville, where Northwest snapped its 12-game losing streak with an overtime victory over the Lincoln Cardinals, 60-58.

Don Reid sank two free throws with three seconds to go in overtime, pulling the Mustangs into the victory column for the second time this season.

The win gains Northwest some ground in the conference standings. It was their second loop victory of the year.

In the two non-league games Tuesday, Cole Camp whipped Hermitage, 62-43, while Warsaw fell apart in the last quarter and lost a 63-37 decision to highly-touted Skyline (Urbana).

Coach Andy Crist emptied his Smithton bench against LaMonte, and 12 players responded entering the scoring column.

Gene Anderson picked up team honors with 18; Martin White and Greg Siegel followed with 16 and 11 respectively.

LaMonte's Tom Hughes was high in the game with 23 points. Bill Hurt added 14; Scott Thompson chipped in with 10.

LaMonte won the junior varsity opener, 32-24. Jerry Freeman and Steve Dillon each scored 12 for the Vikings.

LaMonte also captured the girls volleyball match, 15-8, 15-7.

Five Green Ridge players scored in double figures. Kelly Harding led the way with 26. Stover, which trailed at the half 39-26 at the half, was led in scoring by Mike Ringen's 12.

Stover won the junior varsity game, 43-35, but Green Ridge captured the girls volleyball tilt and remained atop the conference standings (6-9) in that division. After losing the opening set, 15-3, Green Ridge won the next two in the best-of-three match, 15-4, 15-6.

Northwest nearly made it a sweep of the night's action against Lincoln, but fell one point short in the junior varsity game, 30-29.

The Mustangs' girls captured the volleyball action, 14-16, 15-9, 15-5.

Kerry Schroeder led Northwest in scoring with 23 points, which was also good enough for game honors.

Randy Werneke and Reid added 14 and 13 in that order.

Rod Ingram topped the Cardinals with 16.

Mark Harms, Charles Cordes and Robert Miesner combined for 35 points to guide Cole Camp past Hermitage. Harms led the Bluebirds' attack with 15 points. Cordes and Miesner followed with 10 apiece.

Cole Camp's Kevin Williams poured in 19 points to lead the Bluebirds to a 62-23 win in the junior varsity game.

Warsaw trailed Skyline by only seven points as play moved to the fourth quarter at Urbana, but the Wildcats couldn't hold onto the ball. Skyline took advantage of the turnovers and outscored Warsaw, 22-3 in the final stanza to salt away the victory.

James Anderson scored 15 points for the Tigers, but game scoring honors went to Warsaw's Steve Spencer, who netted 22.

The setback was the 14th straight for the Wildcats.

Skyline claimed the junior varsity game, 39-26.

Record-breaker

Charles Johnson (left) moves inside Haskell's Lew Schneider (55) for the bucket that broke the SFCC individual game scoring record in Tuesday's game on the Fairgrounds. The basket gave Johnson 35 points. Johnson wound up with 41 points in the game. Schneider fouled Johnson on the play, but Johnson couldn't cash in on the three-point play. Watching the play is Haskell's Lemuel Harlan (25).

Oklahoma State visits Lincoln

Nebraska's Cipriano has faith that Cornhuskers are for real

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Nebraska Coach Joe Cipriano thinks his Big Eight Conference leading Cornhuskers are for real this basketball season.

"We're contenders," said Cipriano, who sends the Huskers, unbeaten in league play, after their fourth victory against the Oklahoma State Cowboys in Nebraska's fieldhouse tonight. "You have to label us a bunch of scrappers who have come together.

"We've got pride on defense. We've got confidence in ourselves."

All other Big Eight clubs are busy tonight also. Defending Champion Kansas is host to last place Colorado, Missouri goes to Oklahoma, and Kansas State invades Iowa State.

"We felt we had a nucleus of kids who maybe could put it together," Cipriano said. "Have we come along faster than I thought we would? Well, maybe. It helped to take our team to Italy last summer. It helped for us to play Indiana.

"Bob Siegel has come along very well, and our little junior college guard, Steve Willis, has given us some of the play that we lacked. He's a leader, and he's quick. We've got four kids in double figures.

"Really, though, it's been a team effort. Of course, we can't look by anybody. We have to work harder than any team in the country.

"You know, this is the last year in our old fieldhouse. We'd like to see the poor old fieldhouse go out in good style."

Cipriano regards Oklahoma State, 2-1, as "the real sleeper in this conference. They're the most improved team. They had such a tough December, playing all but one of their games on the road, nobody really knew what kind of team they had."

Only Kansas, 2-1, should win in a breeze although the Jayhawks have a habit of not beating anybody badly. Colorado is 0-3 and hasn't won a game since the middle of December.

Missouri and Oklahoma are both 1-2, and the loser might find itself on extremely shaky ground as far as contending for the title is concerned.

Kansas State, after its opening loss to Nebraska, has won two games in succession, and the Wildcats have been showing signs of becoming a tough team. High scoring Iowa State, 1-2, scored its lone victory over Kansas and narrowly missed beating Missouri last Saturday. The Cyclones have one of the nation's leading scorers in Hercle Ivy.

Mary Prentiss dead at 58

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Mary A. Prentiss, one of the nation's top senior women tennis players, has died at her home following an extended illness. She was 58.

Only one Big 8 player goes in 1st round

Tuesday's National Football League draft all business with no surprises

NEW YORK (AP) — By the time Tuesday's session of the National Football League draft was half over, the thing had once again degenerated from a thoroughbred auction to the usual body count, wherein the announcement of a player selection was greeted by "Who's he?"

The Steve Bartkowskis, the Randy Whites, the Ken Huffs, the Walter Paytons ... all were long gone, gobbled up by the talent-hungry and talent-rich teams in the opening round.

Only occasionally did a name strike a familiar chord. Placekicker Steve Mike-Mayer of Maryland, kid brother of Atlanta Falcons' kicker Nick Mike-Mayer, was 72nd to go, chosen 20th in the third round by San Francisco. Roosevelt Leaks, Texas' star running back, had to wait to become No. 105, Baltimore's pick leading off the fifth round.

Quarterback David Humm of Nebraska didn't go until 23 picks later, when Oakland claimed him, another left-hander to go with Ken Stabler. And quarterback Pat Haden of Southern California was picked No. 176 (20th in the seventh and last round Tuesday) by Los Angeles, even though he'll spend the next two years studying in England as a Rhodes scholar.

For the most part, though, the droning on of teams, names, positions and colleges was greeted by no more enthusiasm than the scratching of pens and dialing of telephones, as representatives of the league's 26 teams crossed one more body off the scouting lists.

There was to be more of the same today as the remaining 10 of the 17 rounds were ticked off, 260 more collegians to complete this annual 442-player avalanche which amounts to roughly 48 tons of flesh and untold millions of dollars in salaries and dreams.

There were few surprises, if any, in Tuesday's pickings. The Falcons started it off by naming Steve Bartkowski, the All-American quarterback from California whom they wanted so badly that they had to swap first-round picks with Baltimore and give up a highly regarded offensive tackle to the Colts in order to get him.

The 6-foot-4 Bartkowski has been compared by many to Roman Gabriel and called the strongest passer to come out of the college ranks since Jim Plunkett — the last quarterback picked No. 1, in 1971.

Dallas, which picked No. 1 a year ago and got defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones, went No. 2 this year, having acquired this choice spot by sending quarterback Craig Morton to the New York Giants.

This time the Cowboys took defensive end Randy White of Maryland, the Outland Trophy winner as the nation's top college lineman in 1974. They said White would be tried at linebacker, perhaps to eventually succeed veteran Lee Roy Jordan.

Baltimore, No. 3 as a result of the Atlanta's deal, picked guard Ken Huff of North Carolina. The Chicago Bears followed by naming running back Walter Payton from Jackson State, then Cleveland took defensive end Mack Mitchell of Houston.

Payton's teammate, linebacker Robert Brazile, was picked next by Houston, New Orleans chose wide receiver Larry Burton of Purdue, then came a trio of defensive tackles — Gary Johnson of Grambling by San Diego, Mike Fanning of Notre Dame by Los Angeles and Jimmy Webb of Mississippi State by San Francisco.

Los Angeles, which had three first-round picks by virtue of past trades, took tackle Dennis Harra of Miami, the Jets dealt away their No. 1 to New Orleans for defensive end Billy Newsome and the Saints picked Ohio State tackle Kurt Schumacher.

Completing the first round, Detroit took guard Lynn Boden of South Dakota State; Cincinnati got linebacker Glen Cameron of Florida, Houston picked Texas A&I running back Don Hardeman; New England went for tight end Russ Francis of Oregon; Denver took defensive back Louie Wright of San Jose State; Dallas picked linebacker Tom Henderson of Langston; Buffalo grabbed linebacker Tom Ruud of Nebraska; Los Angeles used its third choice to take tackle Doug France of Ohio State; St. Louis picked defensive back Tim Gray from Texas A&M; San Diego chose defensive back Mike Williams from Louisiana State; Miami got Tampa tackle Darryl Carlton; Oakland selected defensive back Neal Colzie of Ohio State; Minnesota picked Colorado State defensive end Mark Mullaney, and the Pittsburgh Steelers, 1-13 just five years ago but now Super Bowl champions, completed the opening round by choosing Michigan defensive back Dave Brown.

Louie Dampier (10) of the East ABA All-Stars, steals this outlet pass by Swen Nater (31) of the West in the first period of Tuesday night's All-Star game in San Antonio. Dampier cashed in on the steal with an easy goal. The East roll up 151 points in the 151-124 victory.

East thumps West, 151-124

Lewis' 26 points nets MVP honor

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Freddie Lewis of the St. Louis Spirits told a team official before Tuesday night's American Basketball Association All-Star Game that he thought he might win the most valuable player award.

And he was right.

Lewis connected for 26 points and collected 10 assists in leading the Eastern Division All-Stars to a 151-124 victory over the ABA's top talent in the West.

"I was pretty confident the way I've been playing in St. Louis and I wanted to prove to myself that I'm not too old to play basketball," Lewis, 31, said in the locker room after the game.

His marksmanship outshone fine performances by George Gervin and James Silas of the San Antonio Spurs, who scored 23 and 21 points, respectively, in the West's losing effort.

Julius Erving and Brian Taylor, both of the New York Nets, added 21 points each to the East total, and Artis Gilmore of Kentucky contributed 13 rebounds for the East.

George McGinnis of Indiana topped the West's rebounding efforts with 12.

The East shot nearly 56 per cent from the field and scored more than 73 per cent of the time from the foul line. At the same time the West shot only 44 per cent from the floor, but connected 80 per cent of the time on free throws.

Silas hit 11 of 11 free throws in racking up his 21 points.

The game was even in the first quarter as the East fought back from a quick West lead gained on a stuff by Gervin and a 12-foot hook shot by San Antonio's Swen Nater. By the end of the quarter it was 32-32.

Then the Eastern Division took the lead for good in the early seconds of the second quarter on a free throw by Dan Issel of Kentucky, followed by a steal and driving lay-up by Dave Twardzic of Virginia.

By halftime the East held a 10-point lead, built steadily during the period.

Lewis scored seven points in the third period as the East's margin grew to 19 points.

The West rallied in the fourth quarter and at one point cut the East lead to nine points. But the East caught fire as Taylor hit for 14 of his points in the fourth period and expanded their lead to as much as 27 points.

Bowling tourney opens in K.C.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — the King Louie Open Bowling Tournament begins a four-day run Wednesday.

The event is the fifth stop on the winter tour of the Professional Bowlers Assn., with Saturday's finals to be televised nationally.

Earl Anthony, named as Bowler of the Year by the Bowling Writers Assn. of America Tuesday has taken a week's vacation to visit with his family in Tacoma, Wash. Johnny Petraglia, Brooklyn, N.Y., is in Florida for the Superstars competition.

Despite the absence of the two stars, the event has drawn a full field of 128 bowlers, including defending champion George Pappas, Charlotte, N.C., who set a record in PBA competition in edging Gary Dickinson, Fort Worth, Tex., for his third crown. Pappas, whose first pair of titles came in 1970, won 22 of 24 head to head matches, breaking by one the old standard.

PBA members will go through 18 games of qualifying. Those making the first cut will begin another 24 match games beginning Thursday afternoon. First place pays $7,000.

One of the favorites among fans here is Carmen Salvino, who owns a slim advantage over Anthony in this year's money race. Salvino has won $16,670 this tour—including a $14,000 bonanza for first place in the Showboat Open in Las Vegas, Nev. two weeks ago. Anthony has won $15,950.

Other past King Louie winners who will be competing here include Larry Laub, Tim Harahan, Mike Limongello, Bobby Knipple, Jim Stefanich and Pappas.

Wall street sleuths use computers to nab crooks

By JOSH FITZHUGH
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "People will always be tempted to buy or sell on inside information," says Frank Savarese.

And that's why the American Stock Exchange hired Savarese away from a brokerage house in the early 1960s to organize the exchange's Market Surveillance, or "Stock Watch," division.

He and 13 other white collar detectives, as they're called on Wall Street, have the responsibility for detecting, halting and investigating trading on the Amex that might involve fraud.

For the small investor, market surveillance can sometimes spell the difference between losing a little and losing a lot. Sharp detective work can uncover a stock fraud before all a company's assets are gone, or trading can be halted to give all investors — not just a few insiders — an equal chance to learn critical news about their company.

The federal Securities and Exchange Commission has final responsibility for the obeyance of trading laws, but it has delegated much of the legwork to the various exchanges under a self-regulatory concept.

The Amex, for example, investigates 16 to 20 unusual trading situations a week and more than 400 different stocks a year, although few cases ever go to court.

The New York Stock Exchange has a similar "Stock Watch" division, but withholds figures on the number of stocks checked.

Practically speaking, this means Savarese and his associates have the power to investigate manipulation of stock prices, to halt trading pending clarification of news about a company, and to censure brokers.

A recent investigation involving trading of Geon Industries stock provides a typical example of Amex sleuth work.

Last Feb. 22, trading in Geon was delayed at the market's opening because of an imbalance of sell orders. An Amex official immediately contacted Geon, which said there were no "material developments" to report. So, the stock opened for trading at 10:33 a.m., down ½ point from the previous day's close.

At 11 a.m., however, Geon reported to Amex officials that its directors had reviewed a preliminary earnings report the previous evening and the report showed profits sharply down from the year-earlier level.

Shortly thereafter, Amex halted trading, "news pending," but the stock already had fallen $3 to $11.87 on a volume of 46,600 shares. It was then that Savarese's detective work began.

His office called the floor to learn the names of brokers who had placed the sell orders. From them names and addresses of investor accounts were obtained.

"We ask brokers why they're active in the stock," Savarese says. "Do the orders come from a particular locality, or through one salesman, and is he soliciting? Are there few or many investors?"

In the Geon case, Savarese and his men discovered a lot of activity in one brokerage firm, and a late night phone call from a Geon employe to a broker in the firm.

"It was then we began to realize the possibility of insider trading and had reservations about earlier statements by the broker," Savarese says.

After an investigation by the SEC, during which the broker and the Geon employe agreed to a permanent injunction against further misconduct, the case was taken to trial against Geon, its chairman and vice president.

A federal district court in New York ruled that the Geon chairman, George O. Neuwirth, had violated securities laws. He was enjoined from further violations. Geon also was enjoined. The charges against the vice president, Frank Bloom, were dismissed.

Inside trading — despite its acknowledged frequency — is a difficult violation to prove. Many inside trades move through Swiss banks, which safeguard the names of investors. The use of a relative's name frequently will throw off or discourage investigators. Any other valid reason for buying or selling the stock generally will cancel out the charge of fraud in the courts.

Though the law permits penalties up to two years in jail, the usual course is a consent decree — without an admission of guilt — and an injunction against further wrongs. "I've been prosecuting for over a decade and have never found a guilty man," a government lawyer says.

Stiffer penalties might deter some violators, according to Savarese. He also notes Amex's success in getting inside traders to forfeit illegal profits. He argues that denying the gain may ease the temptation.

Scanning computer printouts is part of Frank Savarese's detective job at the American Stock Exchange, New Yrok. He's on the lookout for white collar crime in stock trading—he organized the exchange's market surveillance or "Stock Watch" division, and now with 13 associates he runs herd on 1,300 Amex stocks, monitoring them daily for trading irregularities that might signal fraud. ## Sight takes precedence in bustline battle

Dear Ann Landers: You printed a letter from a woman who was gypped by a company that advertised they could enlarge her bustline. That letter was the major topic of conversation at a meeting I attended recently.

I was amazed that so many women were truly concerned about the size of their breasts and arguing the merits of various techniques for enlarging same — including surgery.

One woman (who was more than amply endowed), turned to me and said, "Isn't this conversation ridiculous? What good are voluptuous bosoms if a woman's mind is flat and small? Isn't that an insult to a man's intelligence?" Please comment. — Average And Content

Dear A and C: Unfortunately, dear, most men can see better than they can think.

———

Dear Ann Landers: I have held off writing for months — hoping someone else would send you my problem, and today I saw it. I am in total sympathy with the woman whose minister husband didn't want any more sex. My husband thinks the same way — and he's no minister. Far from it.

We enjoyed sex for over 30 years, then suddenly he went completely impotent. This happened a year ago. He gets angry if I mention my needs. Finally he went to a doctor — alone. The doctor said he was O.K. physically and gave him some pills. They didn't help.

Now my husband thinks I should "forget it." But I am being destroyed by his rejection. He doesn't show any affection whatever. I can find no proof that he is running around. But it doesn't make sense that a man who has enjoyed sex for 30 years should drop it like a hot potato.

My anxiety is showing in my work. I have thought of divorce. What do other women do when their partner (at 50 years of age) want to call it quits on their sex life? — Married In Name Only

Dear Name Only: Maybe you'll find your answer in the next letter. It's there.

———

Dear Ann: This letter is in regard to the woman who divorced her husband because he became impotent at 42. The same thing could have happened to me, had it not been for my wife.

She became more affectionate and understanding than ever before. She turned into the aggressor and showed me that we could still have a satisfactory sex life in spite of my impotence.

At first I was quite passive. Then I began to be the giver as well as the receiver. Many women don't realize that a man's sexual desires don't vanish just because he becomes impotent. Nor should the wife feel that she is unattractive to him and therefore responsible for the problem. But some women know what to do about it — and some don't. Lucky for me, mine did.

A psychiatrist wasn't able to help me, but my wife, with her 10th grade education, was an expert on this serious marital problem. I might add, I am still impotent, but happy, satisfied, and more in love with my wife than ever. — Most Happy Fella

Dear Fella: That was a most timely letter. I hope the woman who wrote ahead of you can read between the lines and get the message. It's a good one and it could save her marriage Thanks for writing.

Telex announces plan to appeal in IBM suit

TULSA, Okla (AP) — The Telex Corp. will appeal last week's reversal of a $259.5-million judgment previously awarded Telex in a suit against IBM Corp., President S.J. Jatras said Monday.

"We have received a setback with the adverse decision by the Court of Appeals which will require us to seek an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States," he said in a statement.

The decision reversed last week by the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals was a U.S. District Court ruling last year in favor of Telex in its suit accusing IBM of monopolistic practices. IBM at the same time won a judgment against Telex for theft of trade secrets.

Small number of nuns Care for Czech church

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — The tiny village of Bila Voda, with nine Roman Catholic orders, and three religious sisters for every villager, is one of Czechoslovakia's end-of-the-road havens for the country's dying population of nuns.

In a setting of huge chestnut trees and a somewhat stark and somber 18th-century college, the nearly 300 nuns live out their days cared for by younger members of their orders and sustained by a state pension that pays for their keep and provides pocket money.

With no novices allowed by state regulations, the approximately 7,000 nuns still in Czechoslovakia are as a whole an aging community. Their fields of activity, too, have been progressively restricted by the government.

Where once they served in hospitals, schools, orphanages and old people's homes, today's nuns are confined to caring for severely retarded children and the aged. In some areas, where labor shortages are particularly severe, they still serve in hospitals.

When their productive lives wane the nuns may enter one of the country's 29 homes for aged nuns and priests run by the Roman Catholic Charita organization and supported by the state.

The rather ramshackle village of Bila Voda, straddling the Polish-Czech border in the northern part of the country, is such a place. "Sixty is considered young here," says one nun. The eldest, Sisters Gaudencia and Balbina, are both 92.

Most of the nuns came to the village in 1951. Bila Voda had seen tough times during World War II and a number of the houses were windowless, doorless, damp and filthy when the sisters arrived.

Major restoration work has been undertaken since those days but the village still has an unkempt air, a sense of being removed from the normal pace and pulse of life.

The sisters seem to have little impact on the approximately 120 lay inhabitants of Bila Voda. Only two families, the sisters say, attend their services regularly, although others request help at wedding ceremonies, baptisms or funerals from time to time.

The sisters live in their own communities, each governed by a Mother Superior. Of the nine orders only the Franciscans of Notre Dame has roots in Bila Voda. The orders of Cyrial and Methodius, Franciscans of St. Raphael, the English Sisters, Sacred Heart Carmelites, Ursulines, Sisters of Mercy, Holy Cross Sisters and Sisters of St. Vincent came in the early 1950s.

"We are probably the last of the religious orders in this country," says one Mother Superior. "But the spiritual life in Czechoslovakia is very lively. In a way the Communists did us a service. All the chaff has fallen away. And the church won't die with us."

ABA may add 1 team in '76

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — American Basketball Association Commissioner Tedd Munchak says the league will have at least 10 and possibly 11 teams next season.

He made that disclosure Tuesday at the conclusion of the ABA's mid-winter talks here.

Cincinnati will get a new franchise next year to be headed by Munchak, leading to a necessity for a change in commissioners.

However, Munchak quelled rumors of an immediate change when he said, "The commissioner, at least until the annual meeting (this June), is Theodore J. Munchak."

Despite the new franchise, the ABA coud remain a 10-team league, he said, because of financially troubled Memphis.

"The Memphis franchise will continue in Memphis and we're going to exert another effort in the city of Memphis to see if we can have a strong and viable and successful franchise," he said.

"If Memphis succeeds, if Memphis demonstrates its ability to support a ball club, generate some enthusiasm there, then we'll have 11."

And Munchak said the league will continue to help the Memphis club financially.

Owners heard during the meeting that money problems of two other franchises in the league seemed solved for the moment.

A group of Indianapolis businessmen obtained approval from the league Monday to buy the Indiana Pacers, who had been reported in bad shape.

And Dr. Leonard Bloom, owner of the San Diego Conquistadors, told the owners his ailing franchise got a transfusion of new money.

The presence of Carl Lindemann, vice president of NBC Sports, at the talks led to speculation a television contract may be offered to the league.

Lindemann said talks are in a preliminary stage and said NBC is evaluating the possibilities.

Japan could aid U.S. beef price situation

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials are hopeful that Japan soon will open its doors to beef imports, a move that could help ease the depressed market price situation for grain-fed cattle in the United States.

Asst. Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter, who just returned from a two-week Asian trip, said Tuesday he received indications from Japanese government officials that their beef market would open again "relatively soon."

Japan closed its market to beef on Feb. 1 last year, eliminating what had been a relatively small but growing market for high quality U.S. beef. About 30 million pounds a year had been exported to Japan, mainly for the hotel and restaurant trade.

Although small by U.S. production standards, resumption of the Japanese market would help siphon off some of the premium cuts which come from grain-fed cattle.

Yeutter said he thought there is room for Japan to take much more U.S. prime and choice beef. He said the highest quality beef in Japan was selling for $30 a pound in one supermarket he visited.

In another development, Yeutter said he believed Korea, Taiwan and the Philippines would stand by their contract agreements and pay the full price for cotton ordered from the 1974 crop.

Cotton prices have plummeted since the contracts were made a year or more ago and there has been reluctance on the part of those three countries to honor the original price agreements.

Yeutter said as much as 1.2 million bales may be involved, including 700,000 ordered by Korea. Thailand also is involved, but Yeutter did not visit that country.

In all, Yeutter said, the cotton, most of which is still in U.S. warehouses, carried an estimated contract price of around $450 million. But prices have slipped so much the past nine months that it is probably worth no more than $250 million now.

"I received very strong assurances at very high levels of government in all three countries that these contracts and commitments would be met," Yeutter said. "And I have no reason to expect otherwise."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government spent $219 million in milk price support operations last year, up from only $86 million in 1973, according to new figures by the Agriculture Department.

Officials said in a summary of milk price support operations released Tuesday that purchases of products — butter, cheese and nonfat dry milk — were the equivalent of 1.3 billion pounds of milk, compared with 2 billion in 1973.

The apparent discrepancy between larger spending in 1974 to remove the equivalent of less milk from the market than in 1973 was explained by officials. In determining "milk equivalent" only butter and cheese were used.

Last year, they said, purchases of nonfat dry milk — a byproduct of butter manufacture — soared to 265 million pounds against only 32 million purchased in the 1973 calendar year.

Butter purchases totaled 35 million pounds, compared with 98 million in 1973, and cheese bought under the program amounted to 72 million pounds, compared with four million pounds a year earlier.

The purchases were equivalent to 1.2 per cent of total milk sales by dairy farmers last year, compared with 2 per cent in 1973.

Commodities bought by USDA to carry out milk price support operations are available for donation to schools, institutions and needy people who still get government commodities instead of food stamps.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rural Housing Alliance, a nonprofit activist organization, says the Ford administration could provide thousands of new jobs simply by stepping up home-building programs carried out by the Farmers Home Administration in the Agriculture Department.

The alliance says in its current newsletter that about 85,000 man-years of work could be created by boosting FmHA housing programs $1 billion.

"The over-all impact would spread far beyond the men hired to manufacture the construction materials and build the houses," the alliance said.

A spokesman for the FmHA said the agency is authorized to loan more than $2.25 billion in the fiscal year which will end June 30 for housing. During the first half of the year ended Dec. 31 more than $954.7 million in housing loans were made to 49,808 borrowers, comparedwith $558.8 million advanced to 35,446 in the same period last year.

The loans are financed through sale of government securities to private investors and are underwritten or guaranteed by the agency.

Ex-Blues player earns Detroit tie

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Detroit Red Wings emerged with only a 4-4 tie in the National Hockey League Tuesday night, but to Jean Hamel it was more.

Hamel, a defenseman dealt to Detroit last winter, fired one shot and made it pay off against the St. Louis Blues, his former teammates.

"I only had what looked like a couple of inches of net," said Hamel, whose 30-foot salvo beat Blues goalie John Davidson with 4:51 left.

"He (Davidson) walked out and cut the angle off," Hamel noted, "but I think maybe the puck dipped and went under his glove."

Davidson, a tall Blues player who like Hamel is 22, had a different version of the tie-producing blast.

"I went out all right, but I drifted away too much," he explained. "After that I just fanned on the puck, so to speak. It was just another thing that's gone wrong recently. It seems like I always find a way to get beat."

Davidson's discouragement stemmed from a deadlock which kept the Blues in their midseason doldrums following an earlier comeback.

Since climbing to 15-15-6 at the end of December the club has a 3-7-2 record and has fallen off the pace behind the leaders in Division 2.

Collision causes B.A.R.T. probe

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When the ultramodern $1.4 billion Bay Area Rapid Transit system opened in September 1972, General Manager B.R. Stokes said, "We don't have any question about the safety, absolutely no question."

But the network of sleek, computer-operated commuter trains now is undergoing a special safety investigation by the California Public Utilities Commission. It was prompted by a fatal collision and a runaway train this month.

BART, a 71-mile, high-speed electric train system which took 15 years to plan and eight to build, has been plagued by sporadic mechanical and electronic shortcomings. Doors have flown open at high speed and failed to close, trains have overshot or undershot stations, fires have broken out in wheels and electrical equipment.

Despite an outlay of $35 million for automatic controls designed by Westinghouse Corp., the system frequently went on manual controls because of failures of the automatic controls.

After BART's first accident — one in which a train plunged off the end of the line in Fremont Oct. 2, 1972, injuring five persons — one Westinghouse official said BART's trains are "the safest in the world" and the accident was a "one in 500 million" failure.

But the opening of BART service through a $180 million, four-mile transbay tube connecting San Francisco and Oakland was delayed for about a year because the PUC would not certify the reliability and safety of the automatic controls.

The tube opened Sept. 16, 1974, and now carries a large share of BART's 2.7 million daily passengers. Fares range from 30 cents to $1.25.

Although the system became popular among riders, malfunctions occurred at a rate which brought criticism from the state legislative analyst and others. Stokes resigned under fire last year.

BART has modified cars and systems to eliminate some problems, but 30 to 40 per cent of the cars in service still break down by the end of each day, according to Albert C. Porter, assistant chief of the PUC's transportation division.

"Anything that breaks down can be a hazard and is a safety matter," he told the commission Tuesday when it ordered the special probe. "The failure rate is extremely high. This is unprecedented."

Grand jury investigates price-fixing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury is investigating possible industry price-fixing in connection with last year's sharp hike in sugar prices, a Justice Department spokesman confirmed Tuesday night.

Sugar prices went up by 400 per cent in 1974.

The Justice spokesman refused to say which sugar companies were under investigation by a New York grand jury.

However, The New York Times said in its Wednesday editions that subpoenas have reportedly been served on Amstar Corp., Sucrest Corp., Savannah Foods and Industries, Inc., and CPC International Corp.

2-year-old goes for $110,000

MIAMI (AP) — Frances A. Genter Stables has paid $110,000 for Taminette, a 2-year-old daughter of In Reality, in the second day of Hialeah's 18th annual sales of Florida-bred 2 year olds-in-training.

The price was the highest recorded Tuesday. Taminette, half-sister to Ten-tam, who has won nearly $500,000, was sold by Marlot Breeding Inc.

A total of 62 horses were sold Tuesday for $1,019,300 at an average price of $16,400.40.

The second-highest priced horse was Chestnut Colt by What A Pleasure out of Sweeping Beauty. She was sold by Crest Farms for $65,000 to Manderly Farm.

Modell drops three from Browns' staff

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dick Modzelewski will remain defensive line coach of the Cleveland Browns but three others on last year's staff will be dropped, Browns owner Art Modell announced Tuesday.

Leaving the staff will be Fran Polsfoot, who coached receivers; Dale Lindsey, linebacker coach, and Dick Wood, offensive coordinator.

The changes were considered to part of shaping up a staff by the National Football League team's new head coach, Forrest Gregg. The return of one-time head coach, Blanton Collier, as quarterback coach was announced earlier.

Buck files counter suit in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jack Buck, announcer for the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team, has denied allegations that he misused $110,000 loaned to him by Eddie Yawitz, a University City druggist and former boxing promoter.

Yawitz, who has been sentenced to three years in prison on income tax evasion charges, had filed suit against Buck, saying that Buck converted the money for personal use rather than for buying stock as the two had agreed.

A counter suit filed by Buck in St. Louis County Circuit Court claimed the money was used properly and asked for a total of $85,000 in actual and punitive damages against Yawitz. Buck's suit contended that publicity caused by Yawitz's suit has hurt his name, reputation and earning power.

Yawitz was the former manager of one-time welterweight boxing champion Virgil Akins.

Kennedy honored

The award was presented by the United Negro College Fund, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's Special Contribution Fund and the Edwin Gould Services for Children.

GRANTMASTER TIRE GUARANTEE

1. Tread Life Guarantee Against Road Hazards
We guarantee all Grantmaster tires against failures from all normal road hazards for the life of the tread with the exception of ordinary nail punctures, fire, theft, front-end mis-alignment, under-inflation, over-inflation and running flat.

2. Tread Life Guarantee Against Defects
We guarantee the Grantmaster tires against all defects of material and workmanship, for the life of the tread.

Basis of Adjustment. Should your Grantmaster tire require adjustment under Section 1 or 2 of the Guarantee, please return it to Grants and we will replace it by giving you a proportionate allowance for the unused tread, based on the current selling price, including Federal Excise Tax.

3. Guaranteed Against Tread Wear
The original tread is guaranteed not to wear out for the number of months designated. If tread wears out during this period, the tire should be returned to Grants and we will replace it, charging the current regular selling price plus Federal Excise Tax less the following percentage allowance toward the purchase of a new tire.

| Tire Guarantee | Allowance |
|---|---|
| 18-27 Months | 10% |
| 28-40 Months | 25% |

This guarantee covers tires in passenger car service only. Passenger car tires used in commercial service reduce the guarantee period by 50%.
